Pact Leak Row Boils

Both B.C. government and civil service union officials were upset today at the public release of details of several civil service wage contract settlements.

Employers Council of B.C. disclosed the wage increases granted by 13 civil service bargaining components in its regular industrial relations bulletin Wednesday. The details apparently came from Victoria despite an agreement between the government and the B.C. Government Employees Union not to disclose any wage settlements until all components are settled.

The figures reveal wage increases as high as 56 per cent for draftsmen and 44 per cent for junior clerks and forest assistants.

Many of the wage settlements were previously made public knowledge through cabinet orders which officially approved several of the new wage scales. The figures were disclosed in a Times story one month ago in which 44 per cent wage increases were noted.

BCGEU secretary John Fryer expressed anger over the apparent break in the agreement of silence and said the disclosures may affect the agreements now being negotiated with the remaining components.

"It's bloody irresponsible. If something goes wrong, the first to issue a statement saying public service bargaining doesn't work is the (employers') council."

The disclosures may inflame the other components, Fryer said, adding that the 1,800-member trades and crafts component had already rejected a contract proposal, "and if they go out, every institution in the province is in trouble."

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall agreed there was a binding agreement not to release data and said he had stuck by that promise.

"There's been some slip-up. I regret it; in fact I am very annoyed about it," he said.

The disclosures have led to "idiotic use of percentages" by the press, Hall said.

He called the percentages "fatuous" because the emphasis of the wage settlements has been to bring civil servants up to a level comparable with other sectors of the economy.

"If the percentages are accurate they only reflect what was required to bring a clerk-

Too Old For Science

LONDON (UPI) — Lady Parker was disturbed about experiments involving beagle dogs. She climbed into her limousine and drove to a chemical company, volunteered to chain-smoke cigarettes for three years and offered then to be killed in the interest of science.

The 74-year-old dowager, widow of Britain's former lord chief justice, said she had read about beagles being used in cancer research.

She arrived at ICI Chemicals' Office and offered to chain-smoke 30 cigarettes a day and then be killed so her organs could be examined.

Lady Parker said the company turned her down, saying she was "too old".

UNION NOT SERIOUS—CAMPBELL

CUPE Proposal Rejected

The regional civic employers' bargaining group today rejected contract proposals of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, stating that the bid seeks an increase of 46 per cent over one year.

CUPE Local 50 president and chairman of the union negotiating group Jim Walker said after the morning session "we're still negotiating," despite the fact that the employers rejected the union proposals. "We're here to bargain and we'll stay as long as it takes."

Walker said the unions and the municipal bargainers had agreed last week not to release details of the union proposals to the press, "but then the employers walked in here this morning and said they were going to break that agreement," Walker said.

"We believe they (CUPE) are not serious about this proposal," regional district chairman Jim Campbell said following a week-long study of the union submission. "We have instructed our negotiator not to accept and to do his best to determine an area of settlement."

Campbell said the proposal, submitted through mediation officer Clark Gilmour last Thursday, brings the regional employers to the stand that CUPE must be willing to say in what area they could negotiate more seriously.

During the past week, said Campbell, municipal employers had seen the union attitude hardening. He cited the strike by school maintenance crews in school district 61, reducing the school day to one hour.

Campbell said CUPE's area bargaining committee turned down a civic employers' request to end the maintenance workers lockout.

In the week since CUPE presented its counter proposal, the employers figured costs on the CUPE proposal. Additional costs, said Campbell, were figured at $2 million for Victoria; $1.7 million for Saanich; $1.8 million school board; Oak Bay $381,600; Esquimalt $370,700 and $355,700 for the Capital Region.

The composite, he said, would be 45.61 per cent on a payroll of $14.8 million.

Saanich and Sidney would be required to absorb increases of 47 per cent with others ranging down to 34.72 per cent in the Capital Regional District.

Highrock students set out to "reCUPE" their rights

Students Picket Pickets

With homemade placards around their necks, seven Grade 9 students paraded in front of their school on Head Street Tuesday picketing the picket line set up by the Greater Victoria School Board Employees Union Local 382.

The action caught the four adult pickets by surprise and they were not amused.

"We're being picketed," an agitated woman picket said. "It's unfair for the kids to butt in."

But the students were undeterred by the union pickets' jibes — or the veiled threats to have union officials tell their parents.

"We have nowhere to go," one of the youths said. "There's nothing left but the street corners.

"It wouldn't be so bad if we could use the gym or recreation centre, but we can't."

Some even said they missed going to school, adding the daily 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. class sessions were not enough.

"I don't want to fail my year," one girl said.

The students are trying to get other schools to participate in their Operation ReCUPE and said they intend to picket the legislature, city hall, Crystal Pool and Memorial Arena today.

"It's a free country," said one of the union pickets who declined to give his name. "They have the same rights as we have."

But he wasn't impressed.

Volunteers Face Pickets at Home

Esquimalt's locked out municipal workers may picket the homes and businesses of volunteers manning the police department's phone and radio, a spokesman said today.

The municipality put out a call for the volunteers late Wednesday after a Labor Relations Board ruling established that Esquimalt police officers are not required to perform work normally done by the locked out members of Local 333 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Union officials said today they consider any outside volunteer as "allies to the municipality and if required, we would picket their residence or place of business."

In his ruling Wednesday, LRB chairman Paul Weiler directed the municipality to withdraw the Feb. 6 order which required police officers to operate the phone and radio, jobs normally done by CUPE members.

Weiler ruled that the order was a violation of the collective agreement between the municipality and the police union.

After Weiler's decision, the Esquimalt police commission held an emergency session and decided to ask for volunteers to man the phone and radio.

Police commission members handled the jobs overnight and this morning the first volunteer, Bert Wilson, was on the job. Wilson, a 30-year-veteran of the Victoria police force and a jailer for eight-and-a-half years, resigned from the Victoria force last year.

Esquimalt municipal clerk George Merz said today the municipality has received "quite a few" calls from people volunteering for the jobs.

He said all names were being taken and that the police chief would screen the applicants.

Volunteers must be over 19 years of age and live in Esquimalt.

Merz said shifts can range from four hours to eight hours, "the longer the better."

Esquimalt police union vice-president John McDonald said today the police officers are pleased with the ruling but "for the security of residents, the volunteers should be properly screened."

Meanwhile, the Esquimalt CUPE local is seeking legal advice today on whether the volunteers recruited by the municipality can be considered "professional strikebreakers" under the B.C. Labor Code. The code prohibits the use of such strikebreakers, but no exact definition is given of the term.

A spokesman said the issue could be taken to the Labor Relations Board for a ruling, depending on the legal advice received later today.

In a statement, CUPE Local 333 officials said they are concerned "about the calibre of outside volunteers who are manning the main nerve centre of the police department."

The statement said any "kook or nut off the street could jeopardize the confidential nature of police work."

Sixth Drop For U.S. Index

WASHINGTON (UPI) The key U.S. economic index showed the sixth monthly decline in a row in January and the U.S. trade deficit rose by $210.5 million the commerce department said today.

In a separate report, the labor department said layoffs in the automobile, construction and textile industries pushed the number of unemployment insurance recipients in early February to more than 5.9 million.

The unemployment rate for workers covered by state insurance plans rose from 7.4 to 7.6 per cent. A year ago the rate was 4.1 per cent. The official national unemployment rate is higher — at 8.2 per cent — because not all workers are eligible for benefits.

PSAC Strikes Rim

Pacific Rim Park is the latest federal government operation on Vancouver Island to be hit by the PSAC series of rotating strikes.

Two Pacific Rim employees walked off the job this morning and set up picket lines across the park road between Tofino and Ucluelet.

PSAC regional representative Tom Dalzell said today's strikes at national parks across the country are in protest against the federal government's continuing designation of PSAC members as "essential to national safety and security."

Dalzell said all designating was to have been completed some time ago, before the conciliation board was appointed, but the designations have continued.

Dalzell said one Pacific Rim Park employee was designated as essential only two days ago.

Parks director Jack Holyroyd said today he did not anticipate any inconvenience to park visitors because of the strike.

"There is some work that is not being done, but it's of no great consequence," he said.

VACANT LOT NO HAZARD

A property in Victoria inspected Wednesday for any residual radiation hazard proved to be clear — in more ways than one.

It is now a vacant lot, on Pandora, but beyond that officials would not pinpoint its location. But the building torn down there three years ago housed a watch repair business 18 years ago.

Discovery of a Toronto building with high residual radiation after a luminous paint spill has led to a national inspection of some sites which once handled the paint.

Province Seeks Own Beef Ranch

The provincial government and the B.C. cattle industry are looking for land in the Kamloops area on which to locate a $3 million, 50,000-head cattle development, a department of agriculture official said Wednesday.

He said the development would ease beef marketing fluctuations, give better returns to ranchers and provide some consumer savings on forage-fed beef.

E. M. King, associate deputy minister of agriculture, and spokesman for a joint government-beef industry committee, said such a development was proposed in a report last July by Canadian Bio Resources Consultants Ltd., of Cloverdale, B.C.

King said the government would like to buy at least 300 acres and as much as 2,000 acres which would include a new cattle sales yard for the Kamloops-Merritt area holding pens and feeding pens in addition to enough backup land for forage production.

He said the area would likely be leased to private business.

King said the key to improved industry in B.C. is more forage production — alfalfa on irrigated benchland and major expansion of corn silage production.

He said the development would increase sales options for cattlemen by including pens for cattle not sold at auction, pens for continued feeding of cattle not quite ready for market, and pens for cattle waiting shipment.

He said the development could prolong the season when cattle could be forage fed, rather than grain fed.

ARABS BLACKLIST 1,500 U.S. FIRMS

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 1,500 U.S. firms have been blacklisted by Arab countries for doing business with Israel, the state department said Wednesday.

Senator Frank Church (Dem., Idaho) made public a 1970 Saudi Arabia blacklist including such companies as Ford Motor Co., Sears Roebuck and Co., RCA, and Xerox Corp.

Harold Saunders, deputy assistant state secretary, confirmed supplying the list to Church as chairman of the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on multinational corporations. He said other Arab countries have their own boycott lists.

President Ford told a news conference in Hollywood, Fla., the blacklist "is totally contrary to the American tradition and repugnant to American principles."

PM Won't Let Scandal-Wracked Munro Resign

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro was driven to the brink of resignation Wednesday by a harbor dredging scandal in his hometown of Hamilton.

Pale and apparently exhausted after three days of tense Commons questioning, Munro offered to quit the cabinet but was advised by Prime Minister Trudeau to see a doctor, take a rest and think it over.

The scandal figures in a nationwide RCMP investigation into dredging company activities. A senior RCMP spokesman said during the day that new charges will be laid soon as a result of the investigation. But they would not be related directly to the Hamilton case.

Activities by dredging companies have embarrassed the federal, Quebec and Ontario governments, and caused the resignation of Ontario Solicitor-General George Kerr.

Kerr quit last Friday to fight allegations of wrongdoing in the Hamilton scandal which already has produced three convictions and resulted in charges against two other men, one a former Hamilton harbor commissioner.

Munro denied criminal or political misconduct but said he may be forced to resign and devote full energies to clearing his name.

The minister was mentioned in the transcript of a preliminary hearing into charges connected with the scandal.

"With the kind of inferences and accusations that have been made, it's very difficult to carry on," he said.

But he agreed to follow Trudeau's advice and think the matter over before deciding on his future. He did not indicate how long a rest he will take to make up his mind.

Trudeau, who left Wednesday night for a two-week European tour, said he knows of no wrongdoing by the minister and will not accept a resignation because a man is tired.

He left open the possibility that circumstances might change but said there are no adverse police reports and Munro has nothing to be ashamed of.

Munro waved off reporters as he left the Commons but answered questions later in his Parliament Hill office.

The nine-year cabinet veteran said in a halting voice the last few days have been the most turbulent since he was first elected to the Commons in 1962.

He did not object to media coverage of the scandal but said political opponents should stop insinuating that he has done wrong unless they are prepared to make specific allegations.

The Hamilton case became public during the July 8 election campaign when a controversy broke over appointments to the harbor commission and donations to Munro's re-election campaign funnd.

He said at the time that political patronage is common and the public knows it. But the controversy would end his political career, he predicted. He was wrong. Hamilton East voters returned him to Parliament with a strong majority.

He has been under recurring political attack since.

MLA Calder Weds

The B.C. legislature lost its oldest bachelor Wednesday when Atlin NDP MLA Frank Calder married a young University of Victoria student.

The marriage took place Wednesday morning but was kept secret until the afternoon when Mines Minister Leo Nimsick introduced the new Mrs. Calder to the legislature.

There was a great pound of cheering and clapping throughout the house.

"If my friend Pierre (Trudeau) can do it, so can the little Chief," Calder said later.

Nimsick had told the house he and Calder had served the legislature together since 1949 and during that time he had often "tried to match him (Calder) up — but he was very particular."

"Many guys have tried to play cupid for the Little Chief but we had to be our own cupid," said Calder, who is now 59.

His new wife is the former Tamaki Koshibe, a graduate of Keio University in Tokyo and now an English student at UVic.

Calder met her 10 months ago when she first visited UVic. Since she came back to study they have been seeing each other "steadily," said Calder, but their marriage is still a secret to both their families.

It was a quiet ceremony in the vital statistics office, said Calder, with Nimsick and Calder's secretary as witnesses.

The couple will leave Thursday for a short visit to Stewart in Calder's home constituency.

Phnom Penh Air Lift Rises to Record Level

Times News Services

PHNOM PENH — U.S. civilian cargo planes escalated their supply effort to Phnom Penh almost to Berlin-style proportions today in face of a warning by U.S. Ambassador John Gunther Dean that Cambodia could fall to the Communists by April.

But diplomats say no amount of American aid can prevent the collapse of President Lon Nol's government.

Eleven stretched DC-8 jet flights by two U.S. commercial companies flew more than 300 tons of rice to Phnom Penh from Saigon today. Rebel gunners hit Pochentong Airport with seven rockets, killing seven persons and wounding 27 others, but no U.S. planes or pilots were hit.

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the deposed ruler of Cambodia, said in Peking after talks with Premier Chou En-Lai that his rebel Khmer Rouge forces "will never lay down our arms even if the U.S. spends tens of billions of dollars in the months or years to come in an attempt to bring us to our knees."

The North Vietnamese foreign ministry, in a statement broadcast by the Communist New China News Agency, attacked the U.S. airlift as a violation of the Vietnam peace agreement and said it left open the door for possible action against the United States and punishment of South Vietnamese President Nugyen Van Thieu.

The military situation in Cambodia worsened steadily and military sources reported hand-to-hand fighting today around the last government controlled town on the Mekong River, Neak Luong, 35 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, a naval base under siege for weeks. Casualties were believed heavy.

Dollar at New Low

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar fell to record lows in West Germany, Sweden and Switzerland today despite support buying by the countries' central banks.

In Frankfurt the dollar fell to 2,280 West German marks from 2.29 marks Wednesday. The previous low as 2.2835 marks July 9, 1973.

In Zurich it fell to 2.3935 Swiss francs, down from 2.4105 francs Wednesday and from the previous record low of 2.3975 on Jan. 27. In Stockholm the dollar brought 3.9150 kronor, five points under its previous low in July, 1973.

In London the dollar was quoted at 2.4263 to the pound compared with 2.4250 Wednesay, and in Paris it bought 4.1650 French francs compared with 4.1850 francs.

The dollar's troubles were attributed to political problems developing between the United States presidency and Congress and the possibility of further falls in U.S. interest rates.

being picketed today include the Ogden Point grain elevator and the Ministry of Transport marine services base on Harbour Road.

About 20 mechanics from Vancouver, Burnaby, Delta and Richmond civic maintenance shops attended a study session today.

The workers, discussing the wage dispute, said they would be back at work later in the day. Another study session is planned tonight for sanitation workers, tradesmen and other mechanics.

A spokesman said the situation is "close to the edge" of a full strike.

In Ottawa Wednesday the leader of the largest postal union said another postal strike will definitely occur if the government offers 20,000 inside post office workers the same wage increase it has proposed for federal labor and trades employees.

Joe Davidson, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW), told a news conference the government is laying off members of his union illegally in Toronto in an effort to break current strikes by the 18,600-member general labor and trades group (GLTs).

The GLT strikes include walkouts by postal maintenance men, grain weighers and samplers and airport maintenance workers.

GASEOUS, HAZARDOUS . . . A SOCRED BOMB?

Aerosol containers should be called Socred containers "because they're 90 per cent gas and 10 per cent product," the legislature was told Wednesday.

Consumer Services Minister Phyllis Young said aerosol spray cans are among the most wasteful forms of packaging today and there is worry they may cause a breakdown of ozone particles in the atmosphere which protect the earth from solar radiation.

No complete evaluation of the danger has been made, she said, but the scientific community is concerned.

She was answering a question from Peter Rolston (NDP-Dewdney) who surprised the house when he asked the minister to bring the house up to date on how great the danger is.

typist in an office here to the same level a clerk in City Hall or in MacMillan-Bloedel."

Junior clerks were paid a base rate of $420 a month as of last April and will rise to $605 a month under the new contract.

Most other increases included in the nine components range from 19 to 37 per cent.

All 22,245 workers included in the nine agreements also get cost of living adjustment protection and improved benefits.

William Hamilton, president of the employers' council, warned B.C. business leaders to expect "confusion and chaos" in collective bargaining this year as a result of the settlements.

"There's no question the private sector is going to be pressured," he said. "The council finds the release of these figures intensely disturbing and it could lead to a destructive situation."

"These figures are beyond the wildest dreams of John Fryer."

Fryer said the union is "just getting to the crunch point" in reaching a settlement for 2,500 liquor store clerks and another 1,500 probation and social workers are still in mediation after turning down the last offer.

"This whole thing just hit like a bolt from the blue," said Fryer. "I can't understand it, I really can't."

Icebreaker Watches Disputed Vessel

QUEBEC (CP — A government icebreaker is "within sight of the Answer and staying astern of her," a spokesman for the federal transport department said today.

Reginald Towers said in a telephone interview from Halifax that the icebreaker John A. Macdonald made visual contact with the vessel, formerly called the Atlantean and before that the Clara Clausen, early today about 60 miles southest of the Gaspe.

"She doesn't appear to be in any difficulty, otherwise she would have acknowledged the radio signals from the Macdonald, which she hasn't done so far."

As the ship plowed her way through ice flows a complicated legal hassle developed on land.

At least three groups are claiming the ship as theirs.

Once claimant, Charles Fournier, said he owned the ship, contrary to claims by Paul-Emile Caron who said he bought her for $28,000 at a recent auction.

Meanwhile, Boston lawyer John Bottomley told a Montreal radio station the ship belongs to Vitral Navire S.A., a Panama-based firm that is owned by U.S. citizens.

Bottomley said Capt. Brian Erb was acting on behalf of Vitral and is headed for an undisclosed destination for a salvage job.

Imperial Raises Prices

TORONTO (CP) — Imperial Oil Ltd., Toronto, has announced an increase of 2.2 cents a gallon on its wholesale prices of gasoline, heating oils and diesel fuels, effective today.

In a news release Wednesday, the company said the move follows recent removal of federal government restrictions on the recovery of petroleum costs and reflects higher manufacturing, distribution and marketing costs.

In B.C., the Energy commission this week ordered the oil companies not to increase prices until at least April 1. The same freeze has also been applied in Nova Scotia.

Gulf Oil of Canada Ltd., Toronto, said it still is calculating the increases in its costs that would be used as a basis for any price increases.

Imperial also said it will increase heavy fuel prices by 1.3 cents a gallon, turbo fuel by 2.5 cents a gallon and asphalt by 1.4 cents, except in Ontario where the increase will be 2.3 cents as a result of additional secondary distribution costs.

Imperial will only charge an extra 1.3 cents a gallon to customers who pick up gasoline, heating oil and diesel fuel at major distribution centres and only one cent a gallon extra if the fuel is picked up at the refinery gate.

Community News Roundup

What's happening in your community?

The Times on this page features news and views from community and ratepayer groups on southern Vancouver Island.

The community news page appears every Thursday and is available to any community - related, non-profit public groups.

Send or bring in your notices and reports of meetings to the Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas, or telephone 382-3131 and ask for "community news."

An all-ages meeting-people club has sprung from within the group, organized by Durfee and George Pymm. The Y has donated a meeting room, to be used for the first time Saturday night from 7 till 9:30.

It's for people who want to meet people, said Durfee, and the club is very much needed.

Victoria used to have an over-30s club, said 85-year-old Pymm, but that club is long since disbanded.

"Besides, we want to be even broader than that," said Durfee, who suggested it be called an "over zero club."

The meeting this weekend will be both for business and pleasure, and the organizers hope members can plan for monthly meetings.

Everyone is invited to the Y lounge for the gathering.

Just how residents of the Highlands will get a say in the writing of a community plan is unsure even after a HIGHLAND DISTRICT ASSOCIATION meeting with Capital Region officials last week.

Chief region planner Peter Hammer indicated some say would exist, however.

Association president Frank Spellacy wants to see a resident sit on the regional board's advisory planning committee. He said he made that very suggestion to Langford regional board representative Earl Pallister who "hummed and hawed" and gave no firm answer.

Hammer told residents he hopes to hold a public meeting soon so Highlanders can talk about development and planning in the western section of the region taking in that area, Colwood, Langford and Metchosin.

The planner also told the meeting the regional board may be opening an office in the western sector soon so people could watch the progress of plans at close range.

Spellacy called Hammer's approach a "straightforward" one with which he was impressed. He said it appeared at the meeting that board representatives really wanted to see resident participation in the planning.

A meeting was held last night to elect directors of the nine-month-old SAANICH PENINSULA COMMUNITY RESOURCES SOCIETY, which was being run by appointed members of the area.

The group was formed to prod human resources minister Norm Levi into action when Peninsula residents felt they had a need.

Local people looking for provincial grant money also come to the society seeking recommendation of their projects to Levi.

Two society members who have been active are Tom Rostas and Ray Joy.

Members of Victoria's HALLMARK SOCIETY aren't very excited about constitution changes, and too few showed up at the most recent society meeting to produce a quorum and vote on changes.

Group spokesman Terry Reksten said a slightly-altered constitution would allow them to acquire heritage homes on the real estate market.

"We know lots of elderly people who know the heritage value of their homes," she said when first talking about the changes.

These people would be happy to sell or donate their homes to the society for preservation, she said, but the group can't accept them under its present constitution.

She would like to see the society buy and restore buildings then sell, lease or rent them.

"We don't want to become heritage landlords, but just get houses off the market during the dangerous period when they may be torn down," said Reksten.

With a name like Jim O'Sullivan, what group could he represent other than the IRISH-CANADIAN CULTURAL ASSOCIATION?

He's the one to be phoned for information on the biggest-ever gathering of the Irish in Victoria, scheduled for St. Patrick's Night March 17.

O'Sullivan can be contacted at 656-2048, and information is also available through the mail at P.O. Box 1615, Victoria.

This will be the Association's first annual banquet.

When the SOOKE-JORDAN RIVER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE meets March 12, possible municipal incorporation will be on the agenda for discussion.

One resident believes "the people in Sooke are really fed up," as Bob Saunders of Sooke Rd. said this week.

Some feel the Capital Region is allowing them no actual say in a development plan. He said organization of residents into a township or village would provide them with the muscle they need to stand up to the regional board when they disagreed on details of the plan.

Saunders thinks the board would be opposed to Sooke's incorporation.

"They want to keep it quite messy," he said.

"It's just wicked what the Regional Board is trying to shove on us. We're being discriminated against," said Saunders.

Fred Galbraith of Whiffin Spit Rd. agrees residents haven't had enough of a say in plans.

"What is the sense of having an advisory committee if they have no say in the drafting of a community plan?" he asked.

Municipal affairs minister Jim Lorimer is invited to the Chamber meeting.

About 150 people taking programs at the JAMES BAY COMMUNITY SCHOOL are being affected by the CUPE labor dispute, as basketball, badminton, volleyball and floor hockey classes normally held in the school will have to be called off or held elsewhere.

Two possible locations for classes are the James Bay Community office and the local scout hall, says Peter Loeppky of the school.

Instructors in these classes will try to contact all participants by phone to make arrangements.

CUPE's labor problems are slowing down progress on the JAMES BAY NIP program, too, as municipal department heads haven't been meeting as often as usual to iron out NIP details, says project chairman Sharon Hume.

If anything new has come up in the last month, however, it will be talked about Tuesday night at 7:30 in the Niagara St. Human Resources office. That's February's NIP meeting, and everyone is welcome.

Adults around the Newton-Richmond area are invited out to the Newton Gardens craft room March 5 at 2 p.m. to get card and bingo groups organized.

Those who can't make it to this particular meeting shoud call L.I.P. worker Elaine Sunderland at 598-2812, who is busy getting programs going for the NEWTON-RICHMOND COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION. Even non-members can come out for cards and bingo.

Kids in the area are being given a prod by Association spokesman Velma McIntosh to come out to films in the craft room Saturday nights. Movies for those under 12 are screened from 6 until 7, with the next two hours devoted to people over 12.

The WOMEN'S HOSPITAL AUXILIARY, looking after patients in three area extended care hospitals, is in need of more members to expand and further develop its program.

Promotion of social activities is the service auxiliary's main function, and volunteers work with people incapable of taking part in regular community life.

The auxiliary covers three hospitals — St. Mary's Priory in Colwood, Glengarry on Fairfield Rd. and Mt. Tolmie at the corner of Richmond and Cedar Hill Rd.

The group was established in 1969 to help realize the philosophy of extended care units which try to create an environment as normal and homelike as possible.

Annual bazaars at each hospital are total involvement affairs for residents, staff and volunteers. Tea parties, wine and cheese parties and make-up parties help achieve the goal as well.

Although fund-raising is not the auxiliary's main purpose, members are currently engaged in working on a bus fund, stirring up finances to pay for bus rentals.

The sale of western Canadian lottery tickets was one method used to garner money for the cause.

At present there are about 25 members with 15 actively participating in the program.

Anyone interested in volunteering a little spare time should call group chairman Mrs. H. Lavalle at 479-6520 or publicity chairman Mrs. H. McLeish at 478-2743.

Round Two With the ECM

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau is once again knocking on the Common Market's door in the hope of getting a foot in said door and assuring Canada's independence from the United States. Stripped of the rhetoric, the trip is the second round in what has so far been a dismal bout of shadow boxing with market countries. In the first round, Trudeau tried to negotiate a mutually beneficial trade deal under the General Agreement on Trades and Tariffs only to be solidly rebuffed by the ECM, especially the French.

Instead, the Europeans talked vaguely of an all encompassing deal whereby they would have access to Canadian raw materials in exchange for new markets for their manufactured products — a familiar line drummed into Canadian salesmen around the world. Just what the Canadian delegation has in its brief cases remains to be seen, but it had better be good, judging from the latest export trade figures. Statistics Canada posted a $472 million trade surplus for 1974 although most of that figure was the result of a healthier picture earlier in the year. In the second half of 1974 exports rose only $1.28 billion or nine per cent while imports rose to $17 billion or 17 per cent. The Bank of Montreal's February news letter says the balance of payments "seems fated to deteriorate deeply into deficit," forecasting a possible deficit of $6 billion in 1976.

In the face of downward pressure the Canadian dollar will probably continue to weaken, which in turn will make our products cheaper on world markets, but who will want to purchase them remains to be seen. Last year Canadian sales to Japan increased only half the amount they did in 1973. And as the world's industrial nations increasingly turn towards protectionism to boost domestic economies, the long range picture does not look bright. Phasing out Canadian oil exports to the U.S.—petroleum exports accounted for more than $3 billion in Canada's balance of payments last year — will also hurt succeeding years' figures.

The Trudeau administration seems firmly committed to its so-called "third option" whereby the government would reduce its trade dependency on the U.S. which now absorbs nearly three-quarters of our exports. It is a brave policy, full of posturing, and pandering to Canadian nationalism. Nor can it be faulted in theory. But successive Liberal administrations got us into this dependency on the Americans; now they have suddenly seen the light and want to extricate us as befitting a "more adult and mature" nation, to quote Trudeau. The rhetoric is noble. Still, we must ask ourselves what will happen if the Common Market eschews our trade overtures and the world trade picture continues to decline?

Like so many initiatives of this government it is about 10 years too late. But we can only hope that Trudeau arrives at some mutally beneficial accommodation with the Europeans. The alternative is an inevitable free trade agreement with the U.S., continentalism, and a Canadian government that would be little more than a colonial front for U.S. policies.

An NDP Success Story

At the beginning of a new legislative session, it is only right to point out the fallibility of some of the rhetoric we have heard in previous years. Remember when the NDP government purchased a 79 per cent interest in Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd. by assuming the company's $70 million debt?

Resources Minister Bob Williams said at the time the government acquisition was the only way to encourage development in B.C.'s northwest, and it might be added, to preserve 2,700 jobs as Columbia Cellulose was about to close up shop.

The opposition took a deep breath and began to holler. Ed Smith (SC — North Peace) said if private enterprise could not make Colcell a profitable operation, there was no reason to expect the government to be able to. To a man, the Liberal caucus believed there was no prospect of the operation returning sufficient profit for the repayment of long term debt and to generate sufficient capital for future development. "I would fear the government is buying a big white elephant," Conservative Leader Scott Wallace said.

Time passed and Colcell, now Cancel, reported 1974 earnings before extraordinary credits of $28,991,000 or $2.38 per share, compared with $7,078,000 or 58 cents in 1973 — an increase of 410 per cent. After applications of extraordinary credits relating to an income tax deduction on application of prior years' losses, its net earnings were $50,866,000 or $4.17 as compared with $12,318,000 or $1.01 in 1973. That's an unusual success story: from private to public enterprise with a 410 per cent increase in earnings.

Unenlightened capitalists will correctly say the operation was already turning the corner from loss to profit when the government took over. They can also point to the government wood chip legislation that forced some interior mills to deliver chips to Cancel.

But the fact remains private enterprise would have shut the operation down and gone away. The government saved 2,700 jobs, made a good profit last year and has a cornerstone for its northern development. That is good economics on anybody's terms.

This newspaper has railed against many of the government's sallies into private enterprise, such as the Ocean Falls purchase and various bus lines, to name only two dubious schemes founded on emotion rather than business sense.

We will continue to do so when things look sloppy, as they often do under the current provincial government. But it is difficult to argue with success. Everybody jumped on the government when they purchased Columbia Cellulose. Nobody said anything when they made a success of it, at least in the short run. We just thought it should be pointed out that here is an instance where public enterprise did better than private enterprise.

Free Trade Bad for Beaver

OTTAWA — The first failure of the Economic Council of Canada's confidential report, Looking Outward at Canadian Trade Strategy for a Changing World, is that it is intellectually dishonest.

Council chairman Andre Raynauld and his staff believe that Canada-U.S. free trade is essential for this country's economic health, and said so boldly in the first drafts of their report. In the final version to be published in May, this controversial recommendation has been bleached out into a proposal for a free-trade area encompassing Western Europe, Japan, Canada and the U.S., an economic and diplomatic fantasy that no one at the council takes seriously.

Protective Mish-mash

The second failure of the report is that despite four years of effort, the council has found no answer to its own question about the prospects for the survival of Canada's political independence in a continental economic unit: "The historical evidence does not support this case (political integration) following free trade," states the report, "and there have been suggestions that such an arrangement may even strengthen countervailing pressures."

The Economic Council's report, described in an exclusive article in the Toronto Star last week, makes sense only if read from two totally different viewponts—the economic and the political.

The economic case deserves to be debated on its own terms, without emotion and without reflex nationalist rhetoric.

"The residual mish-mash of protection," states the report, hobbles the Canadian economy with small, high-cost, non-competitive manufacturing industries. "The only real possibility open to Canada to reach its policy goals is a significant liberalization of trade."

The council was won to this view by a study of the benefits of Canada-U.S. free trade undertaken by two University of Western Ontario economists, Paul and Ronald Wonnacott. The council will publish the Wonnacotts' study separately from its main report.

But the Wonnacotts' analysis is out of date. They argue, for example, that Canadian firms will thrive in a large North American market because of Canada's lower labor costs.

This advantage, and it is hardly something to boast about, no longer exists: Canadian hourly manufacturing wages now are 99 per cent of those south of the border, compared to 96 per cent a year ago and to less than 80 per cent back in 1961.

The U.S. today is a much less attractive economic partner than when the Wonnacotts began their study. Canada soon will pass an historic, post-Confederation milestone and forge ahead of a giant grown sickly.

Late this year, according to the University of Toronto's institute for policy analysis, Canada's per capita gross national product will pull ahead of that of the U.S. As recently as 1950, Canada's showing was a massive 28 per cent behind that of the U.S.

These qualifications made free trade economically desirable then. Free trade is not of itself economic madness. Despite current difficulties, Canada has benefited greatly from the auto trade pact. The insanity instead is political.

Political scientists commissioned by the council asked why Canada could not survive a free-trade link with the United States "when Belgium is thriving in a customs union with much stronger powers like West Germany, France, Italy and now Britain."

The answer is obvious. Rivalry between these four large countries ensures Belgium's survival as an independent nation. North American free trade would put, if no longer a mouse then a creature no larger than a beaver, into bed with an elephant.

Fearful that its identity would be lost in an English-speaking continent, Quebec's certain response to free trade would be to turn back toward separatism. All provinces, their fortunes increasingly dependent upon those of the U.S. economy rather than upon the small, domestic market, would turn more and more to Washington and away from Ottawa.

Transparent Charade

A century ago Friedrich Engels, colleague to Karl Marx, wrote in a famous passage: "In 10 years this sleepy Canada will be ripe for annexation . . . The economic necessity of an infusion of Yankee blood will have its way and abolish this ridiculous boundary."

As much by luck as by design, Canadians have proven Engels wrong. We have absorbed a great deal of Yankee blood, in the form of investment capital and of entreprenurial skill; and we have not merely maintained but incomparably strengthened our ridiculous boundary. Free trade would wipe out the boundary line, first to goods, then to capital, then to labor and, lastly and unavoidably, to politics.

I believe that the economic case alone for Canada-U.S. free trade is wrong but will defend to the death the right of the council to present this argument and to force a public debate. I know that the political case for free trade is a transparent charade.

Substandard Offer

I would appreciate the space to correct the misinterpretation by the press of the $1.15 offer made to us by the Treasury Board. The offer is as follows:

Fifty cents per hour on signing the contract, 15 cents per hour six months later, 40 cents per hour 12 months after signing, 10 cents per hour 18 months after signing.

The take-home pay would be 74 cents over a two-year period, and with no provision for retroactivity to Oct. 8, 1974 when our contract terminated—it is, in effect, a 30-month offer.

During the 1972-73 bargaining, our union was one of the first to come under the six per cent ceiling. With the subsequent erosion of buying power, the offer does not approximate the loss on a minimal 1972 salary, much less equate with the 1975 marketplace.

So, what might on the surface seem a fair and reasonable offer, is in effect a sub-standard one ignoring completely the inflationary spiral of the past 2½ years. It is an offer we cannot live on, much less live with.—Bill Steele, President, Local No. 11, Letter Carriers Union of Canada.

Down on Seattle

You had an editorial on Feb. 19 entitled Doing Something Right. I feel it should not be passed by without comment. The writer wants to know how it is Seattle has oodles of cheap accommodation for rent. What, he asks, has Seattle done to bring this happy state of affairs about? Ha! how much more efficient are the American capitalists than us muddling sufferers of socialism.

Well I suspect Seattle is in the position she is in now because she has done everything wrong. Victoria is only 80 miles away from Seattle and enjoys a comparable climate etc. But Victoria still retains a little of its charm, and it is still a pleasant place to live. Far too many people want to live in Victoria. No one lives in Seattle unless they are paid handsomely to do so.

When the Boeing shutdown came, thousands were thrown out of work. So overnight thousands scuttled out of Seattle. Seattle is at the mercy of an erratic capitalist or rather industrial-military complex, "progressive" and "go-ahead" as all get out as long as the aircraft orders poured in.

SEATTLE

. . . done everything wrong?

Now supposing the shipyards and B.C. Forest Products Ltd. closed up tomorrow. Would we be left with a plethora of empty houses and apartments? Not on your life. Most of the former employees would prefer to putter on here in near poverty. Of course some would leave and the rumor would reach Ontario that Victoria was full of vacancies and in no time at all the immigrants would pour in.

Perhaps the editorial writer was suggesting we copy Seattle — cut down all our trees, turn all land south of the Malahat into grey homes and apartments or acres and acres of asphalt parking lots. We might just be able to make our town unattractive enough that we would have plenty of vacant accommodation. — Monica Oldham, 511 Victoria Avenue.

Smoking Reply

I am moved to reply to Mrs. M. M. Tregaskis' letter (Times, Feb. 21) defending her God-given right to blow smoke into other people's faces on the ferries.

First off, let it be said that few things are more vile and loathsome to a non-smoker than the arrival in his presence of a smoker, replete with belching clouds of blue smoke issuing forth from various orifices as he speaks. Not only does the smoke itself attack the hapless non-smoker, the nauseating odor permeates his clothing if the encounter is in an enclosed space, and he reeks until he is able to change his clothes. Believe it or not, there are some people who do not appreciate this.

The smoker need not be actually smoking to offend; more often than not he can be smelled several yards away. There are some smokers whose body odors are utterly incredible, and force the non-smoker to move away. If the offending party's stench doesn't offend, his looks certainly will. The yellow fingers, the filthy brown moustaches and noses of men, and the mouse-brown tint of the ladies' hair, the burns in the clothing and the little flecks of both stray tobacco and ashes on the clothing do little to enhance the smoker's appearance.

She implies that non-smokers have the run of the ship, while smokers are confined to a small area "further back". Hogwash. It is my guess that approximately 80 per cent of the seats on the ships are available for smoking.

Considering the burnt floors, burnt carpeting, burnt seats, inconsiderately deposited ashes, cigarette butts left on everything, the stench, the cost of cleaning the tar off the walls and ceilings, and all the other expense and inconvenience caused by the smokers among us, Mrs. Tregaskis should be very pleased that the Ferry Authority has not (as yet) followed the lead of many North American and European transportation companies and banned smoking, completely, totally, and absolutely on their facilities, in the interest of preserving them. — James Golightly, P.O. Box 792, Victoria.

CUPE Ethics

As the church once deplored the monopolistic, greedy, strong-arm tactics of the uncaring, dehumanizing robber barons of corporate ownership and management, so now it seems the church and its ministry must begin to explore and raise some questions about the ethics of CUPE and other trade unions.

Union demands, union tactics and union language are strongly and unhappily reminiscent of the ownership excesses which, in the early 1900s, gave impetus to the developing union movement — a movement which then enjoyed and deserved the valuable support of the churches.

I am a socialist, and for many years have been a believer in and supporter of unionism. I shall continue to support responsible and intelligent, open and honest unionism. I shall not support CUPE or any other unions in their effort to "break the backs" of municipalities. The municipalities are not our enemies. The municipalities are us.

CUPE says it seeks fair wages. It seems to me the municipalities offered a more than fair and generous increase, well in excess of the increased cost of living which all Canadians have experienced. As I understand it, lower-paid employees were to receive considerably larger increases than the higher-paid employees. Holiday time for the first year worker was to be equal to that previously allowed only after many years of service. If anything, the municipalities are open to the criticism that their offer was inflationary. For CUPE to turn it down, and to have shown no willingness to negotiate in good faith by coming up with a clear counter-proposal, but rather to have early on displayed a determination to bring the municipalities to their knees, suggests to me that what CUPE is seeking is not fair wages, but power — a corrupting power which can force demands in lieu of negotiating fair settlements in an atmosphere of genuine good will.

It seems to me the municipalities had no option other than to band together to resist the takeover of our society by an extortionist union leadership altogether as reprehensible in their attitudes as any corporate ownership-managership has ever shown itself to be. I commend the municipalities for their courageous stand and the eminent good sense and dedication to the welfare of all of our citizens which that stand represents.

I do not think the union movement has been dealt irreparable harm by the ill-advised tactics of the present CUPE leadership, but it has been harmed. Years of patient, persistent, devoted and responsible union efforts for equity have been compromised by the greedy demands of a moment. A reputation for responsibility and reasonableness remains to be gained. That the men and women of CUPE and the other unions are equal to the task, I do not doubt. That they are fully capable of responding to this challenge, I do not doubt. That they have the will to undo the harm is alone open to question. — Rev. Richard J. Norsworthy, Minister, Unitarian Church, 2721 Gosworth Road.

Begbie Research

I am collecting material for a biography of Sir Matthew Baillie Begbie, the first chief justice of British Columbia. After attending school at Guernsey College, he went to Cambridge (Peterhouse), taking his degree in 1841 following which he practised law in London as a member of Lincoln's Inn until 1858 when he was appointed by the colonial office to be a judge of the supreme court of the then colony of British Columbia.

I would be interested in hearing from any of your readers who might have memorabilia or documents relating to his career.

Although he died in 1894 there are still probably a few persons now living who met and remember him and I would be particularly interested in hearing from them.—David R. Williams, Q.C., 170 Craig Street, Duncan, V9L 1W1.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of February 27, 1915

LONDON—"For the last five days several regiments of the Canadian contingent have been in action alongside the British troops," says a despatch received here by a special correspondent in northern France. "The casualties have not been heavy considering that the soldiers from Canada opposed the most determined attacks the Germans have made in several weeks. According to my informant, it was an Ontario regiment that had the honor of being the first infantry of the main contingent, except the Princess Pats, to get at the enemy. The Germans never reached the trenches where the Canadians were reinforcing the British line regiments. They were mowed down with machine gun fire."

Tito Tightens The Screws

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

BELGRADE — Yugoslav President Tito, 82 years old and revered among nonaligned nations as the patriarch of Marxism free from Soviet influence, in what must be the last years of his rule is promulgating laws and practices that are moving this nation toward a Marxist orthodoxy that may be more rigid than that in the Soviet Union.

One such law, already enacted, prohibits the "spreading of false news" and the "disparaging of the state organs." But an amendment before the Serbian Assembly would extend the ban to cover "hostile outbursts" at public gatherings, family religious feasts, in shops, public buses and even in private apartments.

During the past year, scores of suspected political activists have been arrested. Among them was a group of Communists in Montenegro who were sentenced to terms of up to 14 years in prison for allegedly plotting to form a rival Communist party with links to Moscow.

Apparently to balance this, the arrest was also ordered of Mihajlo Mihajlov, an emigre Russian known in the West for his anti-Soviet writings. Mr. Mihajlov, who in recent years had been deprived of employment in Yugoslavia, forbidden to leave the country, and finally evicted from his modest apartment by the government, has been in jail since last fall, and is scheduled to come to trial shortly on charges of "spreading hostile propaganda."

Last month, on President Tito's orders, the Communist party broke the long-standing tradition of autonomous administration for Yugoslav universities (a doctrine the Communists themselves had espoused before they came to power). Serbian authorities stepped directly into the administration of Belgrade university, and ousted eight professors. The professors were removed during the university's winter vacation so as to head off possible student protests.

All eight are Marxists and former party members. They belong to a circle of academic leftist dissidents associated with the Zagreb periodical Praxis. Praxis is the only legal publication in Yugoslavia regularly criticizing the party and government. It has often argued, for example, that "self-management," the economic and political system supposedly unique to Yugoslavia, is not really practiced. It appears that Praxis will now be suppressed.

Why has all this happened?

Yugoslav observers agree that the growing momentum toward authoritarian "centralist" rule comes directly from President Tito. As he grows older, he has sought to tighten up every aspect of Yugoslav society, particularly the organization and authority of the League of Communists of Yugoslavia (Communist party.) He has been demanding a kind of moral hardening, a rejection of modern (and decadent) "liberalist" think, and a return to Marxist purity.

There is a belief among some Yugoslavs (and a good many foreign diplomats) that in the confusion after President Tito dies, American and Soviet armies could find themselves at war over conflicting interests in the Balkans. Certainly, both Moscow and Washington have seemed to be signalling in recent months that each would regard domination of Yugoslavia by the other as intolerable.

But in the minds of more orthodox Yugoslav Communists, of whom President Tito is one, the greater danger results from Yugoslavia's open borders and powerful economic links with the West, which they see as facilitating a softening or even rotting of Marxist-Leninist purity at home.

President Tito is counting on the party as a whole, rather than any single successor, to maintain Communist momentum when he goes.

It is widely assumed that his favorite for the succession would be Edward Kardelj, a colorless party theoretician with views identical to President Tito's but whose complicated speeches on party dialectics are regarded by many as practically incomprehensible.

But whatever happens, President Tito clearly wants to give his successors the strongest possible start, in the form of a "monolithic" party, a united and disciplined nation and a cadre of leaders devoted to carrying out Titoist tradition. There is no room in these plans for dissent.

Despite the arrests and university dismissals, there is little organized dissent in Yugoslavia.

Occasionally, incidents come to light involving antigovernment guerrillas or terrorists, in Yugoslavia or involving Yugoslav official missions abroad. In most cases, the guerrillas have come from emigre Yugoslav groups devoted to overthrowing President Tito and Communist rule. They have found no perceptible backing among Yugoslavs. President Tito himself apparently remains respected everywhere, at least as a kind of father figure.

There also remains a flickering of nationalist secessionism, feeding particularly on traditional hostility that persists between Serbs and Croats.

But for the moment, the nation seems little interested in the political views of a handful of obscure dissidents.

What does concern Yugolavs is a 32 per cent inflation rate, rising unemployment and the prospect of much worse to come. As conditions worsen in Western Europe, some half million Yugoslav migrant workers normally employed in the West are returning home along with their wives and children. Their return means more mouths to feed and hands to employ.

"Politics is a game for boys," an irritated Serbian housewife said, looking over the latest list of price increases. "But when people find they can no longer feed their families, then watch out."

Premier Lougheed addresses campaign meeting in Fort Saskatchewan Tuesday

Who Is Mr. Lougheed Kidding?

By GEOFFREY STEVENS
The Globe and Mail

OTTAWA — Unfortunately, any expression of mirth would probably be interpreted as just one more manifestation of the uncaring attitude that those of us who live and work in the nation's capital are popularly supposed to hold toward the poor, downtrodden, alienated wretches of Western Canada. Otherwise, one would be tempted to explode in hysterical laugher at Peter Lougheed's professed reason for calling an Alberta election for March 26. Imagine. It may be the first time in Canadian history that a premier has felt compelled to go to the polls so that he will have a mandate to speak for his people at a federal-provincial conference (the first ministers conference on oil prices in April). Or, as Mr. Lougheed put it, he "needs the confidence of Albertans before going into that meeting".

Humbug.

What earthly difference does it make whether Mr. Lougheed arrives in Ottawa with the 49 seats his Conservatives held, or with 65 or 70 seats? Neither Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau nor any of the nine other premiers has challenged Mr. Lougheed's right to speak for Alberta. Even if he were to win all 75 seats in the Legislature, the best he could hope for in April would be 10 politely stifled yawns and a few bored comments along the lines of: "That's nice, Peter. What else is new?"

Of course, there is a much more serious side to the Lougheed election. It is a time-honored tradition that provincial politicians win elections by running against the central government; the Ontario Tories have been doing it for years with uniformly happy results. But Mr. Lougheed's campaign threatens to go far beyond the generally accepted level of bitchiness. He seems intent on challenging federal authority, and federal resources policy, in a manner that can only exacerbate federal-provincial relations, and possibly even damage our federation.

If Mr. Lougheed were the premier of Quebec, there would be screams of outrage across English Canada. But because he is one of us, we are inclined to smile indulgently when his ministers talk about the "master-servant relationship" between Ottawa and Edmonton, and similar nonsense. (This coming from a province which has never had a sales tax, has no death taxes, has just reduced provincial income taxes, has no unemployment to speak of and is well on its way to turning its windfall petroleum revenue into a strong, industrial economy. Want to bet Ontario Premier William Davis wouldn't trade his place in the master bedroom for Mr. Lougheed's lumpy cot in the servants' quarters faster than you could say "Syncrude" or "PWA"?)

Mr. Lougheed's election raises another question: What implications does it have for the national Conservative leadership hunt? Fewer, perhaps, than one might think.

At a guess, the Alberta election may cause some of the weaker aspirants to hold back for a spell. Discretion would suggest they not commit themselves until they see whether Mr. Lougheed wins a massive victory and tries to use it as a launching pad for a national leadership campaign.

This is not to say a sweep on March 26 would make Mr. Lougheed irresistible to the federal party. To the contrary, it conceivably could lessen his chances. It goes without saying that if Mr. Davis wanted to be considered for Robert Stanfield's job he would first have to win re-election in Ontario—and win it in convincing style. Unlike the situation with Mr. Davis, however, Mr. Lougheed's political standing in his own province is not being questioned. His great obstacle, if he were to seek the Ottawa job, would be his identification as the country's most outspoken advocate of provincial rights; an election sweep would only reinforce this identification.

A good many Tories hold the view that the last thing the federal party needs is a federal leader who is known to the country as an opponent of the central government, as an anti-federalist, if you like. To do so would be to play into Liberal hands by inviting the Grits to mount another — and much more soundly based — "One Canada" campaign along the lines of their spectacularly successful, if cynical, 1968 campaign. Such a campaign could have only one outcome. It would not be the election of a Lougheed government.

A Town Thwarts The Power Blocs

By JONATHAN C. RANDAL

MARCKOLSHEIM, France — French environmentalists, after years of disheartening official neglect, have finally scored a breakthrough in this small Alsatian town.

By defeating plans to build a polluting German chemical factory here, the environmentalists proved that it is possible to defy successfully the powerful, all-encompassing machinery of the French central government.

The environmental victory was spearheaded by a handful of local dignitaries, the very kind of "notables" whom the late President Charles de Gaulle despised for their alleged pettiness. He dedicated a great deal of his political energies to removing them from control of the French Republic.

But, in a local throwback to the power structure of the earlier republic, the local priest, doctor, pharmacist, dentist, veterinarian and a trio of school teachers parlayed their professional and class ascendancy over this largely rural community of 3,328 to block a $14 million investment by Chemische Werke Muenchen.

Although the notables insist that their campaign is aimed solely at blocking the allegedly dangerous lead pollution inevitable in the plant, other environmental militants are convinced that the Marckolsheim affair marks the end of the French public's unquestioning compliance with whatever the government decrees as regards industrialization.

With President Valery Giscard d'Estaing setting a new tone by stopping his Gaullist predecessor's wholesale massacre of Paris landmarks, environmentalists now invoke the Marckolsheim battle as a precedent for contesting the construction of 20 planned nuclear power plants that Giscard himself wants.

The notables note that their victory in Marckolsheim was helped by the reputation of Alsatians as serious people, their determination to keep their opposition apolitical and the manifold and manifest tactical errors of their adversaries.

Typical of CWM's errors was the exasperation of its chairman, Dr. Christian Rosenthal. In excellent French, he answered the townspeople by denouncing their notables as "left-wing extremists and professional agitators," or "greasy long-hairs."

Nor did his demand that the French police clear the building site of eco-freak militants on the ground that "This is my land — I paid for it" go down well with the French government, many of whose members fought in the Second World War Resistance and are allergic to any hint of German authoritarianism.

Particularly damaging was Rosenthal's criticism of the village priest. This devout province still reacts to such affronts in keeping with a local saying: "If you touch a cassock in Alsace, the bells ring in Rome."

Jean Sicurani, an able prefect (government administrator) based in Strasbourg some 35 miles to the north, aroused the villagers' anger. In his long career, aside from serving in various premiers' offices, his experience was acquired in the French colonies, prompting the notables to whisper about Alsace being "colonized by Corsicans and Germans."

An unwitting Sicurani provoked the crisis last year when he announced what he was convinced would be greeted as good news to the Marckolsheim town council.

Finally, Marckolsheim, which ceded a 2,371-acre plot of land along the Rhine River to the Strasbourg port authority in the early 1960s, was going to get its first plant, with a promise of 400 jobs. Sicurani and his precedessors had heard at length from the townspeople that the "Strasbourg Mafia" saw to it that all new industry was placed near Strasbourg, the de facto provincial capital of Alsace.

But the Marckolsheim town council split. Half its members resigned to protest the CWM factory. Elections were called for October. Within weeks, a full-fledged campaign led by the school teachers was under way to gather scientific backing for the environmentalists' case that the factory was a health hazard.

The notables kept pointing out that the German company had tried unsuccessfully to locate the plant in Germany, in Belgium and in the neighboring sister province of Lorraine.

BRAZIL IS BEAUTIFUL FOR BUSINESS

By DONALD HEDGES

(A letter to the editor of The Sun)

Three things in The Sun in January have shattered all my illusions about the nice guys in Canadian business.

These were a Jan. 15 article about MacMillan Bloedel investments in Brazil, a Jan. 7 article concerning Brazil's general investment attractiveness, and a neat, colorful pamphlet on forests which MacBlo had thoughtfully tucked away into every Sun on Jan 18.

The first article describes how MacBlo, along with Brascan (the Toronto-based firm which controls Brazilian energy production), is planning a $500 million tree farm to produce pulp and paper products.

Why are they getting together now in Brazil? Let Mac-Blo's executive vice-president, John Hemmingsen, explain: "Brazil is attractive for a number of reasons. The government is stable, the economy a fast growing one and the trees grow very rapidly there." Furthermore, the company can purchase Brazilian land outright while in B.C. it must be leased from the government.

Now I won't dispute the growth rate of trees but Brazil's "attractiveness" is worth investigating in greater detail.

For example in the Jan. 7 article we read "the military government (in Brazil), which completes its 11th year in March, is maintaining a record of stability and a high degree of control over political and economic life." It quotes one U.S. businessman, short of investment capital, as saying, "It makes us drool to see this fantastic market and not be able to do more."

So we have the spectacle of U.S. and Canadian businessmen drooling and panting over the advantages of Brazil's fascist, brutal dictatorship. Words? Fascism in Brazil means torture — shocks and broken glass against the genitals, and infants tortured to force their parents to confess. It means total censorship over even the right-wing papers, over foreign and domestic cinema and music and literature. It means strikes prohibited by law and met with bullets. It means wholesale slaughter and mass relocations of Indian populations (while foreign companies "develop" their land).

And the economic "miracle of Brazil"? According to the World Bank, in 1970 the richest five per cent of Brazilians took 38 per cent of the national income, the poorest 40 per cent of the Brazilian people took three per cent of the national income. In Brazil 100 children of every 1,000 born die without reaching age one, die of malnutrition and disease. Indeed, conditions are so horrible that Catholic bishops in Brazil, long the bastions of landlord and bourgeois rule, have openly called for socialist revolution as the only way to rationalize Brazilian economic and political life.

Which brings me to the final item, the colorful forestry pamphlet.

Mac-Blo closes the text with this comment: ". . . it is in the interest of all Canadians to assure that their forest industry is taxed and regulated on a scale no greater than in other wood-producing countries. If the costs of making our products are raised beyond those of our competitors, we will be in no position to supply the new jobs a growing Canadian labor force will need. Indeed we will be hard pressed to mantain employment at present levels."

Not a very subtle threat, is it? It means "don't crowd our profits with taxes or strikes, or we'll move to Brazil and wherever else we can set up a nice, quiet, stable police state."

The Lust for Vengeance

By JOHN HERBERT

(A letter to the editor of The Globe and Mail)

Why is it that none of the pack of revenge-hungry citizens, who are howling for a return to the barbaric act of hanging murderers, ever mentions the educational climate in Canada and the United States, that now breeds violent and anti-social behavior?

Rather than add to the ugly blood-thirsty atmosphere which has been developing steadily in society for many years, these citizens of Canada, crying out for vengeance and death, ought to attack the problem at its base if they truly desire to improve our lives. Why do they not cry out against the crass sale of violent programs on Canadian television?

Why do they not shout a protest against the now-popular violence in hockey which seems to tell Canadian kids, who worship that game's heroes, that it is permissible to injure others in the name of competition? Why do these righteous citizens not see that the teaching of extreme competition leads to a society made up of winners and losers, which, in the extreme, means killers and killed? The superficial morality used on television's police and detective serials does not cover up the real motivation, which is to sell more and more violence to an audience that has come to lust after bloody injuries.

And what of the imported American films which sell sordid, frustrated and sick sexual fantasies as exciting experiences? This junk will not teach young viewers to go in search of real, basic emotional experiences in their sexual roles, but it may prompt the weakest ones into violence.

I do not believe that the organization which calls itself CLEAN can truly want a better society when it does not probe the reasons for growing violence and increased loss of human courtesy. I suspect the members of that organization and all others who lust for the killing of another being, criminal or otherwise, of wanting to add to the inhumanity of this crazed, competitive and violent world. Were they sincere in their compassion for the murdered policeman and for all victims of violent behavior, they could not want to compound the ugliness of murder by seeking support for calculated, cool and legal killing. I doubt their motives strongly. Have they forgotten that Christ was legally executed within the laws of ancient societies?

The truest danger in our modern society has become the easy sale of violence, sadism and competition to a gullible, greedy public.

Treat your friends gently.

M-B PROPOSES RESEARCH BASE

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Research Limited announced Wednesday it will build an $8.6 million research and development centre in South Burnaby.

Denis Timmis, president and chief executive officer of MacMillan Bloedel, said the building will house research staff now spread over three Vancouver locations and it will provide improved facilities.

Timmis said the decision to go ahead with the project had been taken in the face of the current economic climate and the depressed state of some segments of the industry.

The centre will be built near the company's paper bag plant on the Fraser River. Covering 94,000 square feet, it will include laboratories, pilot plant facilities, offices, an auditorium, library and cafeteria. It has been designed so that any part of the building can be expanded or modified to meet future demands to at least the year 2000.

Timmis said total staff will be 150, an increase of 30.

HOUSE BRIEFS

Recreation Land Gets Tax Break

The provincial cabinet has approved new "flexible" regulations under the Recreational Land Green Belt Encouragement Act, Recreation Minister Jack Radford said Wednesday.

Rules are concerned primarily with designation of private lands as approved recreational land, designation of crown lands as approved recreational land and reimbursement of real property taxes to owners of recreational land.

The bill enables recreational land users such as golf courses, ski clubs, rod and gun clubs to enter into an agreement with the government to dedicate their land in perpetuity for recreation. In return, the government reimburses the club for the property taxes paid.

Radford said the regulations are intended to encourage greater access by the public with emphasis on special programs for the youth and the elderly.

Clubhouse Grant

The Gold River Rod and Gun Club has received a grant of $9,000 to construct a clubhouse under latest disbursements made under the Community Recreational Facilities Fund Act.

Also announced in the total $125,114.66 worth of grants to organizations in B.C., is $993 to the Cherryville Recreation Commission, near Port Alberni, for additions to the community hall.

The fund, administered by the recreation department, aids communities in financing recreational facilitits by a municipality, non-profit, cultural, ethnic or religious group.

Delinquent at Empress?

LEVI

McCLELLAND
. . . 'gov't expense'

A "hard core juvenile delinquent" was housed in the Empress Hotel at the government's expense, a Socred MLA charged Wednesday.

Bob McClelland (SC—Langley) said, "On at least one occasion a juvenile delinquent was housed at the Empress Hotel waiting transfer to some (detention) facility which doesn't exist anymore in B.C."

Human Resources Minister Norm Levi told the house he was not aware of such an incident but outside he told reporters it was "a crock of shit."

McClelland said he got his information from an RCMP officer who said the child was kept in the hotel for two or three days because there is no where else to send juvenile delinquents.

New facilities must be found, he said.

The Socred also asked Levi to tell the house how much of the $52,523 listed in public accounts as the payment from the government to The Empress in 1973-74 was from the human resources department.

During question period Wednesday, Socreds zeroed in on Levi, asking him repeatedly if there have been any cutbacks on his department's programs.

Levi denied there have been cutbacks and said any newspaper reports suggesting he announced cutbacks are erroneous.

No programs have been stopped, said Levi, but all programs are being evaluated.

McClelland asked specifically if day care and senior citizens' transportation programs have been cut.

"That kind of question is as asinine as the previous question about whether we're putting up children in the Empress Hotel," said Levi.

More Say Sought For Opposition

Liberal MLA Gordon Gibson called Wednesday for a general sprucing up of the legislative rules of conduct and more opportunity for opposition input.

A series of recommendations he presented to the legislature also proposed the opposition be allowed space for their press releases in the B.C. Government News, the government's official news publication.

The North Vancouver-Capilano member said the publication "contains content that is "questionable, and articles that might be called slanted."

"I want to know why its contents don't also include opposition press releases. The people of B.C. receive only the slanted propaganda of one party."

He called on the legislature to establish more committees with increased power and "the freedom to roll around in government departments.

"I'd rather we had the right to get right into the department of education and see what's going on," rather than following stringent terms of reference in legislative committees.

Fish Union Ads Urge Stiffer Ottawa Spine

The United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union has launched a $20,000 advertising campaign to pressure the federal government into adopting a harder line with the United States in west coast salmon negotiations.

In a pamphlet entitled "Stop the sellout of our salmon," the UFAWU claims that American commercial fishermen "intercept" only 2.5 mil-million Canadian salmon per year, while Canadian fishermen "intercept" only 2.5million American salmon. Interception is the word used to describe an American fisherman catching a salmon spawned and hatched in Canadian waterways, or vice versa.

Canada, now negotiating with the U.S. for a fishing boundaries treaty, has "steadily compromised . . . by retreating before U.S. demands," the UFAWU claims, and the federal government must either "take a strong stand in negotiating an equitable treaty reflecting her sovereign rights or participate in another humiliating giveaway of her resources."

Elgin Neish, president of UFAWU Local 24 (Victoria, Sidney and Sooke) and one of two UFAWU advisers to the federal government in the fishing negotiations, said the negotiations are supposed to be confidential, but the union has made some aspects of the talks public "because this giveaway of our salmon is something that the Canadian people should know about."

Neish said it is possible that because the union has broken the confidentiality of the talks, the two UFAWU advisers may be ejected from the negotiation meetings," but that is just something we will have to live with."

The advertising campaign includes the pamphlet outlining the gist of negotiations, newspaper ads, and a preprinted postcard to be sent to Prime Minister Trudeau urging the government to take a stronger stand against the U.S. demands.

For Friendship

The Indo-Canadian Friendship Society of B.C. has been awarded a $10,000 grant to set up a storefront office in Vancouver to promote better understanding between East Indians and British Columbians.

The grant, awarded by the provincial department of recreation and conservation, will provide funds for orientation services to immigrants from India.

Recreation Minister Jack Radford said Wednesday the program "will go a long way towards dispelling the misunderstanding and apprehension that has lead to unfortunate clashes between East Indians and other groups in Vancouver South.

SLOW THINKER?

Rosemary Brown (NDP — Vancouver-Burrard) repeated her call Wednesday for the establishment of a provincial ministry of women's rights — and she coupled it with a dig at Premier Barrett.

Ms. Brown said the ministry is the only way to help the women in B.C. realize their full potential.

Outside the legislature, she said she's certain Barrett — who has consistently denied the need for a ministrp of women — will change his mind.

"He's a rational man," she said.

"Anybody who thinks about it has to agree — it's just that some people are slower at thinking than others."

BROWN
. . . dig at Barrett

The provincial government should encourage the development of non-profit co-operative housing ventures, Vancouver-Burrard MLA Rosemary Brown said Wednesday.

"There are many older multiple dwellings in the province, and I feel it should be number one priority to encourage tenants to come together and form non–profit co-operatives to purchase them."

The NDP backbencher called on the government to establish a program of giving seed money to help tenants get low interest mortgages and do the financing for themselves.

"It would stabilize the community," she said, and stop the practice of demolishing older blocks to make way for higher-priced units.

Social housing has to be one of the responsibilities of this government. The NDP, she said, has to look at helping people get a low rate of interest.

The B.C. Credit Union has already moved into the field, "but it's too large a field for credit unions," she said.

Responding to the throne speech, Brown also urged that The Change of Name Act be done away with, because it hampers women from changing their name without the consent of their husband — "an insult to all married women."

Firing Dailly Top Priority —Curtis on Throne Speech

The NDP government should have started out this session of the legislature by firing Education Minister Eileen Dailly, Saanich and The Islands MLA Hugh Curtis said Wednesday.

Responding to the speech from the throne, Curtis called Dailly a failure and said residents of the province are disappointed and disillusioned by the state of education in B.C.

The Socred MLA said the dramatic shortfall of the government is its failure to remove the cost of education from the property tax levy.

Predicting the education tax bill on the average homeowner this year will be about $65 in Vancouver and several dollars more in Victoria, Curtis stated:

"This is the cost of education alone, it has nothing to do with providing services by municipalities or districts.

"Taxes are heading into the stratosphere and it's quite obvious the taxpayer is not going to be able to support increases in the cost of schools.

Curtis quoted a 1972 speech by Premier Dave Barrett who said the education bill would be removed from property taxes within five years.

"What has happened to confident promises of the NDP?" he asked.

Curtis also said he has "very real misgivings" about the NDP attitude towards local governments. He urged the provincial government to co-operate with lower level governments and discuss issues frankly.

Changed Voting Urged

A Liberal MLA called Wednesday for the return of the preferential ballot so any government elected "will more truly represent the wishes or our people."

Garde Gardom (L-Vancouver-Point Grey) said B.C. should have an alternative ballot which would allow voters to number their choices of candidates so each candidate would have to get 51 per cent of support to be elected.

That system, which was used in 1952 when the Socreds were first elected, would mean parties which do not get a majority of votes could not be elected to power.

If it was put to a plebiscite, he said, it would get resounding support from the populace.

Gardom's speech, on the fifth day of debate on the throne speech, called for more accountability by the government.

As he does every session, Gardom called for appointment of an auditor-general with power to study all government accounts and for the establishment of an ombudsman.

He called for inquiries into the finances of the B.C. Railway, the Peace River project and the Columbia River Treaty, to make the public fully aware of where tax dollars have gone.

Gerry Anderson (NDP—Kamloops) defended the government's record and said the slump in the mining industry is not as bad as some previous years have been.

In 1971, where there was no mineral royalties legislation, 873 miners lost their jobs, he said, compared to about 600 last year.

NDP Shuswap MLA Don Lewis also defended the government and challenged the Socreds, who have criticized the wasteful spending of the NDP, to go back to their ridings and promise to cut back on money spent in those areas.

He said the Socreds are known around the province as "wishy-washy Willy's woeful wonders" and Liberal leader David Anderson is called "chicken matter leader."

ZONING WORRY ON CASA LOMA

Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson said Wednesday he was not previously aware that the Casa Loma housing complex, which the provincial government purchased for $3.18 million, still must go through a rezoning application.

The matter came to light at Burnaby council hearing Tuesday when the application to change the project's zoning from motel use to senior citizen housing project was made.

Nicolson said the application refers only to 33 units in the 125-unit complex slated for senior citizens housing.

But he admitted he is worried about possible objections to the rezoning application now being considered by Burnaby council.

Council's objections, said Nicolson, are "something I have to worry about."

A negative decision could jeopardize the federal government-operated Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation's financial input.

The cost-sharing arrangement provides that CMHC pay 90 per cent of the purchase price with the province paying the remainder and both levels of government sharing the operating costs.

Nicolson said the other 92 units are already zoned residentially and "we could always run the motel units under the Inkeepers Act if we have to." He said the remark was inteded to be "somewhat facetious."

Asked if he would be willing to make the agreement of sale public, Nicolson said he would consider the matter in light of the controversy surrounding the building.

The issue was first raised in the legislature last week by Liberal Leader David Anderson who charged the government paid $1 million too much for the complex developed by Casa Loma Motels Ltd.

For Those Concerned With Youngsters Only

I don't suppose this will have much bearing on the main issues in the CUPE dispute with the city and other municipalities but, on behalf of the youngsters, let's give it a try anyway.

With everyone, it seems, well almost, being on strike or locked out, or whatever, it's the children who really are bearing the brunt of the problem and have nothing to do. They can't attend school, they can't play golf — well, not until late afternoon; they can't play minor hockey; they can't go figure skating; only the rep high school teams are getting in their basketball schedules; and matters, generally, are all fouled up. Sure, the youngsters can do homework, but they can do that normally (it says here) and still find time for other recreation.

There have been charges and counter-charges from CUPE and the area bargaining committee, each blaming the other, but then what else is new in any dispute?

Tuesday night at Memorial, the CUPE pickets gave out informational literature which implied the only reason the city was keeping Memorial Arena open with "scab labor" was so it "could honor the contract with the Cougars and the Western Canada Hockey League and could be fined for breach of contract if it didn't."

The letter added: "Thousands of our children are being deprived of junior hockey, ice skating, figure skating and other public recreation . . ." There can be no argument there, but the inference the arena caused the problem simply isn't true.

A Pair of Prerogatives

So there's a contract with the WCJHL and if the city is honoring it, that's its prerogative and its obligation. But it should also be observed that if the city didn't honor such contracts (wrestling is another) the same minor hockey kids would suffer, and those youngsters now on the outside looking in would be paying higher fees than they do when the arena is functioning normally.

So it's simple economics and besides, without sufficient staff, how can the arena cater to everyone?

Tuesday's mass picketing of the arena was the latest round and hardly a success, except to the Cougars and, oh, yes, the city. Because the biggest midweek crowd of the season turned up, either to see the game or just to be there in case something untoward occurred. Which it didn't thankfully, because mostly cooler heads prevailed. Sure, it could happen again and, by the same token as earlier in the case of the city, that's union's prerogative and its right.

But that's the heavy stuff. What about the youngsters?

The school board and the teachers have their own problem and can probably handle it, even if classes are restricted to about an hour a day.

But in the arena hassle (and don't forget the swimming pools) not only in the city, but in the other districts as well, couldn't there be some sort of a compromise? I know, it all looks too simple on the surface, but if CUPE is sincere in its concern for the children who normally find their recreation, say, on ice, and the area negotiators are sincere in their statements that will study any reasonable offer to help end the dispute, why not start from there?

And No Losers, Either

What if CUPE, for instance, said, okay, we agree something should be done in the recreational field. The children have no part in our dispute, maybe we've been wrong and so has the city, but we're willing to meet halfway to get the young people back on the ice, or in the water.

We'll allow engineers and other personnel to perform their normal duties in the understanding that the previous schedules in effect be restored.

The city, or its negotiators, or whoever, might respond: Great! We'll go along with that, end the lockouts in the affected areas, open arenas and pools and then all the minor programs for youth can proceed as before.

Sure, that's an over-simplification of the issue and maybe isn't feasible as presented, but at least it's a starting point. And frankly, how can either side lose?

Because if the area negotiators didn't win many friends in the first place by their lockout tactics, neither did CUPE, especially with their stepped-up picket action at Memorial on Tuesday. And all the people inside really weren't non-union either.

But then again, maybe neither side has the guts to make the first move, because in this type of situation it comes under the heading of losing face. And nobody wants to do that, do they? Oh, no! And that's the real problem.

At any rate, that's it, for the youngsters. They're sorry for the inconvenience too and really don't want to get involved.

They'd rather skate, or play hockey, or even swim.

Blow To Vikings

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

UVic Vikings will find out this weekend just how much depth they really have.

Vikings, who host UBC Thunderbirds in a best-of-three series for the Canada West University Athletic Association men's basketball championship starting Friday at 8:30 p.m. at the McKinnon Building, may have lost high-scoring forward Dave Mulcahy.

Mulcahy was on crutches Wednesday after spraining his left ankle in practice. Coach Gary Taylor doesn't expect he'll play in the series, which continues at the McKinnon gym Saturday at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday at 2:30 p.m., if necessary.

The injury came at the same time Mulcahy was named to the CWUAA's first all-star team. Two other Vikings, guard Robbie Parris and forward Jim Duddridge, were selected to the second team.

Other first-team choices were forward Steve Pettifer and guard Blake Iverson of UBC, the only unanimous picks, and guard Paul Jacoby and forward Roger Ganes of Saskatchewan Huskies.

Joining Parris and Duddridge on the second team were guard Rick Foggo of Lethbridge Pronghorns, forward Lyle Leslie of Calgary Dinosaurs and forward Doug Baker of Alberta Golden Bears.

Parris, a 19-year-old freshman from Oak Bay, touched on the subject of Vikings' bench strength Wednesday.

"Bert Zethof or Doug Moshe or anybody could step in and do the job if I weren't on the floor," he said. "Losing Mulcahy is a serious blow but I still think we can win. This team's not centred around one person."

Taylor has forwards Lorne Dakin, Lee Edmondson and Duddridge available, although Duddridge Wednesday was still feeling the effects of an upset stomach he picked up on the weekend. Evan Jones, meanwhile, was recovering from a swollen right eye where he caught a finger in practice. He and Duddridge will dress.

Parris, born in Jamaica but a Victoria resident since he was 9, will direct the Viking attack as usual. He was the signal caller for Oak Bay Bays in both their B.C. high school championship years and rejected a half-scholarship at Simon Fraser to go to UVic.

UVic Vikettes and Saskatchewan Huskiettes, tied for second behind the champion UBC Thunderettes, meet at 6:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the McKinnon Gym in their final schedule games. There is no women's playoff.

ALL-STAR FORM: Robbie Parris, named to second all-star team in the Canada West University Athletic Association men's basketball league, will be a key man for UVic Vikings in weekend title series against UBC Thunderbirds at McKinnon Gym. (Times photo by John McKay).

Seattle to Wait

NEW YORK (UPI) — Backers of the Seattle team advised the National Hockey League Wednesday that they are not prepared to accept a franchise for the 1975-76 season.

However, Vincent Abbey, head of the Seattle group, told William Jennings, chairman of the NHL expansion committee, that he was continuing work to prepare Seattle to enter the league in 1976-77.

Jennings said he had received further assurance from Ivan Mullenix of the Denver Spurs that his group would complete its offer to the NHL by Saturday to purchase the California Golden Seals.

The NHL board of governors is scheduled to meet in New York on Saturday.

Origionally, Seattle and Denver weren't scheduled to join the NHL until 1976, but they were given an opportunity to move up the timetable one year if they were prepared to buy an existing franchise.

Sleeping Flyers Only Four Up

By The Canadian Press

Just the other day, captain Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers was saying that his team was only six points ahead of New York Rangers with 20 games to go "so that ought to wake us up."

Now there's only 19 games to go, the Rangers are only four points behind and it doesn't look as if the Flyers are waking up.

The Flyers suffered a 7-4 defeat at the hands of Atlanta Flames Wednesday night while the Rangers whittled down the Flyers' Patrick Division lead by defeating St. Louis Blues 5-1,

It was Philadelphia's sixth loss in the last 10 games, which included two wins and two ties. The six losses include two defeats by the Rangers.

In other NHL games Wednesday, Montreal Canadiens beat Vancouver Canucks 4-3, Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Kansas City Scouts 4-2, Pittsburgh Penguins beat Washington Capitals 3-1, Los Angeles Kings edged Detroit Red Wings 2-1 and Minnesota North Stars beat California Seals 3-1.

Tom Lysiak scored twice and assisted on two other goals to lead the Flames who had just returned home from a 14-day road trip.

At New York, the Rangers got three first-period goals, including Rod Gilbert's 33rd of the season, and goalie Ed Giacomin played shutout hockey for 58 minutes to beat the Blues.

Giacomin lost his bid for a 50th career shutout on Larry Sacharuk's goal at 18:02 of the final period.

In Montreal, John Gould's 27th goal of the season gave Vancouver a 3-2 lead midway in the second period but the Canadiens rallied with goals by Doug Risebrough and Murray Wilson in the final two minutes of the period to claim the victory.

"When you have a one-goal advantage against the Canadiens on Montreal ice it's like having no advantage," said Canucks captain Andre Boudrias.

Jean Pronovost scored three goals in one game for the first time in his seven-year NHL career to lead Pittsburgh against Washington, which suffered its 32nd road loss without a win this season.

Defenceman's Borje Salming's goal and one assist along with his excellent penalty killing work helped the Leafs to victory over Kansas City.

Salming set up the first Leaf goal by Dave Williams in the second period and then gave Toronto a 3-1 lead late in the second period.

SHOOTOUT WON BY COWICHAN

LAKE COWICHAN — Lake Cowichan's 2-0 lead in the South Island Big Six Hockey League's best-of-five championship series doesn't surprise anyone.

But Stocker North Americans surprised a few by outshooting the Lakers 38-28 Wednesday before dropping a 9-6 victory.

The difference was Brett Kneen. Lake Cowichan's goaltender had to be sharp for a team that had lost only two of 32 league games.

Wayne Davidson and Gus Ryan each scored twice to spark Lakers' attack. Bob Bolecki, Neil Sanders, Doug Hanna, Rick Boyd and Earle Robinson added singles.

Third game in the series will be played Saturday at Lake Cowichan, starting at 8:30 p.m.

Playoffs-for-All Refusal Avoids 'Long-Term Abuses'

Western Canada Hockey League operators, feeling "the long-term abuses would have been worse than short-term benefits," have turned down a proposal that requested all 12 teams participate in playoffs.

The proposal was rejected by an 8-3 vote when WCHL governors met in Edmonton Wednesday.

League president Ed Chynoweth said the playoff issue was the major piece of business at the meeting.

Meanwhile, on the ice in Edmonton, the charging Oil Kings continued to move towards a playoff berth by defeating New Westminster Bruins 7-6. In winning their seventh straight, Oil Kings closed to within six points of Westminster and Kamloops chiefs.

Edmonton, however, has seven games in hand over the Bruins and five in hand over Kamloops.

Victoria Cougars, the Western Division leaders, defeated Nanaimo Clippers 7-5 in an exhibition game at Nanaimo Wednesday. Cougars outshot their B.C. Junior League farm club 42-38.

Defenceman Rick LaPointe scored twice for the Cougars while Dan Lucas, Greg Miazga, Jim Gustafson, Lorry Gloeckner and Rick Peter added singles. Brent Kristoff, with two, Brian Day, Bob Jeffrey and Rod Guimont replied for Nanaimo.

COUGARS KEEP HOPES ALIVE

By The Canadian Press

Things finally are beginning to look up for coach Pat Stapleton and his Chicago Cougars.

After staggering along for most of the World Hockey Association season, the Cougars have put themselves into playoff contention with a string of five wins in a row.

Wednesday night they waited until there were only six seconds left to play before beating New England Whalers 4-3 to move to within three points of second-place Cleveland Crusaders, the team they must beat out to capture a playoff berth.

The Crusaders suffered their fourth loss in five games, taking a 9-5 beating from the Aeros in Houston, Minnesota Fighting Saints edged Indianapolis Racers 4-3 in Wednesday's only other game.

This year's WHA playoff format puts the two top teams from each of the league's three divisions in the playoffs, along with two "wild-card" teams the two other teams in the league at large with the best records.

All the Cougars have to do now is get hockey fans in Chicago interested and help Stapleton, goalie Dave Dryden and centre Ralph Backstrom, who became part-owners earlier this season, pay the bills.

Napier's Lawyer Issues Threat

A lawyer for 18-year-old Mark Napier said Wednesday in Toronto he would take legal action if the World Hockey Association blocks Napier's signing with the WHA Toronto Toros.

Lawyer Marv Arnold and Napier's agent, Gus Badali, both confirmed Wednesdy that Napier has signed a three-year contract to start playing with the Toros next season.

When Toros president John F. Bassett announced the signing Monday, the WHA said it wouldn't ratify such a contract because it had agreed not to sign juniors under 20 this year.

"Should signing be vetoed we would commence whatever legal action that would be at our disposal against Bassett and the Toros," Arnold said. "It would be up to Bassett to initiate his own legal action against the league."

Full Force of the Tide Offers Lesson, Not Game

max low

Well that was some kind of expensive rugby lesson — and it should never have happened.

Players from the Wainuiomata Club in New Zealand scraped up every penny for their five-game tour of North America by themselves. And they should have got better value for their money.

Although only a second-division club in Wellington and unable to gain promotion to the first division last season, Wainuiomata could have given Oak Bay Wanderers, Castaways or Cowichan, all Victoria Rugby Union first-division clubs a good close game. James Bay and UVic Vikings would have overpowered the New Zealanders.

So what does the Victoria Union do? It throws the full might of the Crimson Tide Rep squad against them. And the result was 61-0, and an embarrassment to all concerned.

It was such a slaughter that referee Jan Curnow confessed afterward that he blew the whistle when regular time was up and didn't bother playing the extra two or three minutes of injury time.

The Victoria Union can argue it didn't know much about the New Zealanders. But there was a guideline. Petone of Wellington toured a year ago and only beat the Tide by a couple of points. And Petone is New Zealand club champion.

"Petone would probably thrash us by that much, too," Wainuiomata tour manager Jack Keane said after Monday night's match.

But Keane wasn't bitter.

"It's the biggest hiding the club has ever had but the boys never stopped trying," Keane said. "Even though it was a big loss, it's an experience for the players."

He described the Tide team as one of the best he had ever seen and said it would give the full Wellington provincial side a run for its money.

Wainuiomata is a little town of 19,000 people nestling over the hill from the Hutt Valley, not far from Wellington. All the players on tour were "locals," said Keane, and no outsiders were called in.

Numerically, though, the club is a big one. It fields six open-grade teams, three age-group sides and has a total of 550 schoolboys playing rugby.

Wainuiomata finished top in the Wellington second division last season but then lost out in a four-team playoff to decide which two teams would be promoted to the first division.

An unusual aspect of the tour was that the New Zealanders asked for no help at all toward travel expenses or accommodation and paid for the lot — and it was a lot, $40,000 in all including uniforms — themselves.

The club members worked at weekends, building two houses, painting roofs, digging ditches and clearing landslides to raise all the money.

"We didn't want to ask for any help," Keane pointed out. "We came over here to gain rugby experience and tonight we got a valuable lesson."

At $40,000 for a five-game tour, that's about $8,000 for the Victoria game — and a pretty expensive lesson.

The Victoria Rugby Union should try to ensure that next time a team pays a visit, it is fairly matched with opponents here.

That way, both the visitors and fans will get more for their money.

Regina Rink Bows

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Sharon Grigg's Medicine Hat rink from Alberta threw a wrench into any aspirations the Saskatchewan foursome led by Marj Mitchell of Regina had of ending the Canadian women's curling championship early.

The Albertans stole two in the 10th end Wednesday night to carry off a 7-4 win over Saskatchewan and climb into a first-place tie with their prairie neighbors.

The two rinks have 6-1 records, with two rounds still remaining in the round-robin competition.

Still in contention at 5-2 were Marion Radcliffe of Kelowna, and Lee Tobin's Quebec representative from Montreal. They were followed by the Newfoundland four from St. John's at 3-4.

Barbarians Trip Claremont

A slight edge in experience and coolness under pressure appeared to be the difference Wednesday as Oak Bay Barbarians defeated Claremont Spartans 17-13 in a battle between the Victoria Inter-High School Rugby League leaders.

It was Oak Bay's seventh straight victory, and the first loss in eight games for the Ed Kubek-coached Spartans.

In other games Wednesday, St. Michael's University School stayed two points behind Oak Bay in the Eastern Division by downing Spectrum 21-9 while Victoria High Titans and Belmont played to a 7-7 draw.

a scheduled meeting between Mt. Douglas and Esquimalt was postponed because of poor field conditions.

Barbarians, ahead 13-6 at the half, made the most of their scoring opportunities. Claremont outplayed Oak Bay in the second half but suffered, in Kubek's opinion, from "nervousness and inexperience."

Paul Molholm booted three penalty goals and Jim Sandwith counted Claremont's only try with only a few minutes remaining. Stan Williams, Rich Hibbert and Pat Trelawny all scored tries for Oak Bay. Hibbert also kicked a penalty goal and Rich Foster added a conversion.

At St. Michael's, Bruce Moore counted two tries with Reg Moore and Mike Blades adding one apiece. David Olson supplied a penalty goal and convert for the University School team. Ed Murray converted Doug Coulter's try and kicked a penalty goal for Spectrum.

MP Accuses CN of Hiking Express Rates Up to 99%

Times News Services

OTTAWA — A New Democratic Party MP disclosed Wednesday that Canadian National Railways has increased its competitive express rates by up to 99 per cent, and its non-competitive rates by up to 638 per cent, effective Feb. 1.

Les Benjamin (Regina-Lake Centre) said in an interview that the rate increases are losing the company business, primarily to Canadian Pacific Railway, and are the cause of layoffs this week.,

For the second day in a row he demanded in the House of Commons that Transport Minister Jean Marchand move to prevent further freight rate increases which he said aggravate already-existing inequities hurting Westernn Canada.

Marchand said Wednesday he will use his personal influence to keep railways from making across-the-board freight rate increases.

He said that the government will not impose a freeze on all freight rates until new legislation on rates is introduced. In Calgary this week he promised legislation to eliminate some rate anomalies and to aid shippers who can only send their goods by rail.

Marchand said he will ask the railways to hold some rates dows for a certain period.

In January, 1973, and July, 1973, he asked the railways to freeze general commodity rates. While the minister had no legal power to enforce a freeze the railways were virtually forced to agree.

IT'S NEWS: WHELAN PLUMPTRE AGREE

OTTAWA (CP) — In a rare display of accord, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan agreed Wednesday with Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the Food Prices Review Board, that Canadians are unhealthy eaters.

Whelan said he supported statements in Mrs. Plumptre's latest report that most families pay too much for food that does not nourish them adequately.

"It's what I've been saying all along," Whelan scaid in an interview. "My slogan is 'Eat better, love more.'"

On to Senate For Tax Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's huge income tax bill takes its last lap in the Commons today, but it has to clear the Senate before taxpayers can receive income tax refunds.

The Senate expects to start on the 287-page omnibus tax bill next Monday night.

Both Senator Ray Perrault, government leader in the upper house, and Senator Jacques Flynn, the Opposition leader, say the Senate banking, trade and commerce committee has been studying the income tax bill for some time, which should speed things up.

But neither will predict how long the bill will be before the Senate.

Thousands of 1974 income tax refunds are sitting in the revenue department awaiting the approval.

Senator Flynn said the bill is important and should not be hurried even though the government considers it urgent.

"The Senate doesn't want to be pushed around .... We will not forego the rules for the sake of the bill having royal assent two or three days before it normally would."

Senator Perrault said: "There isn't any tendency for us to say we'll pass it sight unseen." But he foresees no major holdup, because of the work already done by the banking committee.

Today will be the 21st day of Commons debate on the bill. It was introduced Dec. 20.

The bill basically is proposals from Finance Minister John Turner's Nov. 18 budget. It contains measures aimed at the individual taxpayer as well as the corporate giants.

Lab Woes Laid To CDC

TORONTO (CP) — Connaught Laboratories Ltd., a Canadian drug supplier internationally known for vaccines, is losing money and is being investigated by the federal health department, says a former vice-president of the firm.

Dr. Andrew Moriarity, a vice-president of research and development who was fired from the company last year, said Tuesday that the Canadian Development Corp. (CDC), a federal agency is responsible for the decline in the firm's financial status and quality requirements.

CDC bought the company from the University of Toronto in June, 1972.

He also claimed the com- said.

"CDC is where the problem lies, not at Connaught," he pany's virus vaccine manufacturing facility fails to meet foreign standards, but still is distributed in Canada.

Donald McCaskill, Connaught's president, said allegations by Dr. Moriarity are without foundation and the government has made no serious criticism of the company.

Dr. Moriarity said that a "perverted administrative process" had allowed such a decline in quality requirements to continue.

PM Backs Lang On Abortion

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang has taken "the quite proper position" on abortion, Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday.

Lang wants the Criminal Code to determine which abortions are acceptable and which are not, he said in the Commons. The code allowed abortions for health reasons, including "considerations apart from purely physical" health conditions. "This is the way the judges are presumably interpreting the law."

Hospital abortion committees are permitted to approve abortions when the physical or mental health of the mother is endangered.

$40M OIL PROBE

EDMONTON (CP) — Agreement has been reached by Ottawa and Alberta on establishing a 10-year, $40 million program of environmental research into the Alberta oil sands.

Alberta Environment Minister Bill Yurko and Environment Canada Minister Jeanne Sauve, in a joint news release, said the agreement — expected to cost each government $2 million a year — is for five years with a further five-year renewable period.

The program by the Oil Sands Environmental Study Group (OSESG) will survey the natural renewable resources in the oil sands and assess the impact of development of these resources. It also will research methods to protect the environment as development proceeds.

"The primary purpose of the studies is to make information available which will help ensure an acceptable quality of the environment during and after operations for the recovery, tansport and processing of oil sands products."

CHILD INJURED BY CAR

Three-year-old Joshua Paul Quinney of 2296 Henry, Sidney, is in satisfactory condition in Rest Haven Hospital with head injuries suffered when hit by a car Wednesday afternoon.

Sidney RCMP said the boy ran out from behind a parked truck on Resthaven Drive and was struck by a car driven by William Vega, 47, of 1156 Ranger.

Protest Shuts Wharves

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) —All operations were halted Wednesday at Vancouver Wharves Ltd.'s terminal here when members of local 514 of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union set up a picket line to protest the firing of a foreman.

Bill Ligertwood, assistant general manager of Vancouver Wharves, said the foreman was dismissed after 4,000 tons of the wrong kind of potash was loaded on a ship last weekend "so we are faced with a major claim for contaminated cargo."

Members of other longshoremen's locals refused to cross the local 514 picket line.

Ligertwood said the work stoppage is illegal because there is a no-strike contract with the union.

Vancouver Wharves has two ships in berth waiting to load potash and sulpher, he said.

A member of local 514 said the union officers were in a meeting and were unavailable for comment.

Distillery Laying Off 80 Workers

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) British Columbia Distillery Co. Ltd. announced Wednesday that it is stopping bottling operations at the plant here, resulting in the layoff of about 80 of the firm's 232 employees.

R. W. Johnson, plant manager, said the closure was due to economic reasons. He said the plant's distillery and maturing departments will continue to operate at present levels.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Construction Labor Relations Association signed a new contract Wednesday with Local 516 of the Refrigeration Workers Union.

The union represents some 350 workers who install refrigeration units throughout the province.

Spokesmen for the union and CLRA said the contract is in line with wage increases awarded last year during other construction industry negotiations.

It boosts the package rate — wages and fringe benefits included — to $11.95 an hour from $9.05 an hour.

SURREY (CP) — William Foster Hillis, 29, of Santa Cruz, Calif., has been sentenced to four years for trafficking in LSD. RCMP found 2.2 pounds of the drug when he was arrested Dec. 5.

QUESNEL (CP) — Larry Harry Landry, 21, of New Westminster, has been found not guilty in provincial court on a charge of criminal negligence causing death. He was charged after Neil Allan McGavin of Prince George was struck and killed by a car last April.

FORT ST. JAMES (CP) — William Twordick, 50, died when the car he was driving collided head-on with a truck Tuesday. Police said an inquest has been ordered.

RICHMOND (CP) — RCMP said Wednesday they were seeking a man about 25, of medium build and with red hair, in connection with the fatal stabbing of Maria Dick, 14, and Elizabeth Zescher, 14, both of Vancouver. The girls' bodies were discovered Feb. 6.

MAPLE RIDGE (CP) — A young man killed Tuesday in a single-vehicle accident was identified Wednesday as Scott Kennedy, 17, of Maple Ridge. Police said the car went out of control and rolled several times.

'What's My Line?'—B.C. Tel Style

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

"Which do you want, private or party line?" asked the B.C. Telephone representative when Greg Lundh of View Royal applied for a phone hookup in early December, 1974.

The answer was "private."

But now, more than two and one half months later, there still is somebody else on Lundh's line. Nobody seems to know quite who it is, how they got there or how to get rid of them.

Lundh got the phone put in his house at 361 Island Highway in early December, with assurance from the telephone company that it was a private line.

"Then around Christmas, I guess a time when people make a lot of phone calls, I became aware that I had a party line," he said.

"I heard people talking when I lifted up the receiver, but I never thought to ask them what their number was."

When the December bill arrived in January and included charges for a private line, rather than the party line he was on, Lundh took the bill into the company's office and explained the problem.

B.C. Tel agreed to adjust the charges and assured Lundh once more than the private line would be his in a matter of days.

The private line didn't materialize though, and the voices on the line persisted.

When the January bill arrived in early February, the private line charges were there again.

Again Lundh made a trip to the B.C. Tel office on Johnson Street and this time talked to a supervisor who explained, Lundh said, that the line had been checked six times and no party line connection had been found.

"They asked me if I was sure I really had a party line."

When he told them he was positive about the party line, the supervisor told him, he said, that the company would do a "cable cutoff" which would rectify the situation and assure Lundh of a private line.

He was told, he said, that the problem may have been a partially cut off phone — where the people could still phone out but no one could phone in.

On Feb. 17 the "cable cutoff" was performed and "I figured that was that, at last," Lundh said.

But two days later, he picked up the phone and there was the party line voice.

"The voice was a kid so I asked him if he had a party line phone and he said he did.

"This time I got the phone number from him."

Friday afternoon Lundh took the phone number down to B.C. Tel.

"The man I talked to told me the phone number would help a lot, but they didn't seem so certain any more that I could get a private line.

"I was told that in some localities there were not enough lines to give out private lines. I can understand that, but if I'm in one of those locals, why did they ask me in the first place if I wanted a private line?"

A B.C. Tel spokesman said there are numerous ways the problem could have come about.

"Between the main office and his line, there is a myriad of cables and it's possible to get an incorrect splice somewhere along the line," the spokesman said.

"It's one of those abortive things that you don't know how it gets there."

The Cuban Experience: A New Winter Escape

If I've said it once I've said it a dozen times: there's just no winter vacation as pleasant, as cheap, as informative or as memorable as a trip to Cuba.

I have been on that Caribbean island no less than four times since Fidel Castro wrought the changes that are overdue for all of Latin America. The Good Lord willing, I hope to go again.

The Cubans are only just now concentrating on Canadian tourists. This year the effort is mainly on weekly charter flights from Montreal and Toronto, at an all-inclusive rate of $330. But next winter there'll be longer visits possible out of Vancouver and some of these have been previewed by adventurous holidayers, including my friend Art Cottrell, a retired printer of our town, and his wife Bessie.

The Cottrells are just back from a three-week tour to Cuba, booked through a Victoria travel agent. They paid $1035 apiece, everything included except for their meals in Mexico City, in company with 12 men and eight women from various parts of British Columbia and Alberta. You go, incidentally, via Canadian Pacific to Mexico City, on Cubana Airlines to Havana.

While most of the tourists during my visits there were of Socialist persuasion, come to see what the revolution has done, the Cottrells are the new breed of holidayer, looking for the winter's sun, an off-the-beaten-track experience and with an apolitical curiosity about the realities of Cuban life not to be found too often in your daily newspaper. They had, as the saying goes, a wonderful time. They recommend it, as I do, to everyone.

Cuba has just about everything to attract the winter-time Canadian visitor. There's no gambling, no prostitution, no beggars, no drug culture. Tipping of any kind is forbidden. There are no hidden "extras" in the tour costs. Service is efficient and honest. You may stroll the midnight streets of Havana or any other city without the fear of being mugged.

While the Cubans themselves wouldn't dream of entering the warm Caribbean during the winter months and reserve that pleasure for the summer, when they take their 30-day vacations and fill up the resorts that are used by outside visitors during the winter, the climate is ideal for northerners. The beaches, notably the 18-mile stretch of Veradero, are beautiful, clean and uncrowded. The sea is clear, blue and tepid. There are ocean breezes and the shade of palms when the temperature goes above the 80-mark. The humidity is low.

Zoe Bieler, of the Montreal Star, who made one of the first one-week tours out of Montreal, says you may run into showers that tend to dribble rather than pour or the occasional toilet without a seat, familiar irritations in Latin-America, but the Cottrells had excellent and sometimes luxurious accommodation throughout their stay.

Food is often rationed for the Cuban, though they've the highest calorie consumption next to the United States and Canada, but the tourist is pampered. Zoe writes of shrimp cocktails, rock lobster in a spicy sauce and other delicacies. On her final night at a beach party, a suckling pig cooked slowly in coconut oil and stuffed with herbs and rice.

Beer and wine are served with lunch and dinner, but individual highballs are expensive. Canadian visitors are given tourist tickets to buy drinks in bars at half price. Zoe, forwarned, took her own duty-free Canadian booze with her and records that she spent less than half of the $75 extra she'd allowed herself for spending money.

Apart from the military installations, there are no off-limits areas. The Cottrells wandered about as they pleased. Art spent one memorable hour in a large Havana print shop, introduced himself to the staff, set a few slugs on their Linotypes and fielded questions by one of the English-speaking printers about how things work in a Canadian shop.

The Cubans, they agree, are particularly warm to visitors from north of the American border since we've kept normal relations with Castro since the beginning, and are understandably anxious to show the progress they've made. That meant a crowded schedule and bus tours throughout the island. At many points, when their government guide Marcia proudly showed them new housing projects built by volunteer workers — and my own recollection is that new housing is one of the revolution's great achievements — the busload of Canadians couldn't resist a spontaneous cheer.

The Cottrells' itinerary included a trip down to Cienfuegos where they watched Demarara suger being loaded into ships for export (sugar, by the way, is unrationed and costs 13 cents a pound) and a visit to the old city of Trinidad from which Cortez took off for his conquest of Mexico.

They spent some time on a collective dairy farm at Yaya, wandered through the Indian village at Gauma and visited a government alligator-breeding station.

With 20,000 other spectators, they took in a baseball game at the enormous stadium in Havana with front-row seats and bused to the Los Caneyes resort in Santa Clara province.

While they were at Veradero they visited the old DuPont summer home and estate, maintained by the government in all its splendor, and Bessie recalls that when they entered the castle-like home a young Cuban was playing classics at the DuPont's grand piano. They went, as well, to the Hemingway farm outside Havana, where he wrote "The Old Man and The Sea."

Zoe reports that several optional tours, including deep-sea fishing, scuba-diving, sightseeing, bicycle riding and horse-riding, are also availabe at rock-bottom rates.

She, herself, took the all-day trip from Veradero to the Bay of Pigs where the Canadians enjoyed a boat trip, a swim and lunch with beer for just $7.

Public buses, always a good way for a tourist to see a new city, cost six cents. Taxis are rare — almost all the cars are of early vintage — and it's almost impossible to rent a car. Gas is rationed for those who do own cars — 10 gallons a month for 60 cents a gallon, most of it from the Soviet Union.

Above all, the Cottrells found the Cubans fun-loving, warm and friendly, hard-working to overcome their isolation from the United States, and determined to give the Canadian tourist his money's worth.

LITTLE RED STICKER, being applied to auto licence here by Dorothy Tolsma of local insurance agency, is a must by midnight Friday if you want to drive your car legally. Sticker signifies renewal of insurance under B.C.'s Autoplan and an estimated 200,000 drivers in province have yet to purchase this year's coverage. Some insurance offices will remain open late Friday and open on Saturday.

Builders Optimistic Despite Slowdown

Union and construction spokesmen today indicated their industry has been hurt but not seriously by slowdowns and work stoppages resulting from the CUPE strike-lockout.

Construction Association of Victoria manager Ed Phillips said contractors still look forward to a brisk year for building projects, provided the situation does not deteriorate.

The school district's Spectrum secondary, valued at $3.6 million, was still in the excavation and foundation stage when it was shut down by CUPE pickets. At Colwood, Juan de Fuca recreation centre was closed down at the steel framing stage.

PHILLIPS
. . . brisk year

Phillips said these were the only two major projects closed and causing layoffs.

Construction inspections required before jobs can proceed to completion have been carried out slowly by supervisory personnel from the municipal and regional jurisdictions, and Phillips hoped that situation would not get worse. (See Story below.)

At this time of year there is still much construction work in the tendering stage, before contracts are awarded, and there could be delays in getting approval to start work.

Jim Sawyer, vice-president of the carpenter's union in Victoria, said lack of inspections has halted some work and slower issuance of permits has delayed starts.

Without attributing how much was due to the municipal dispute, Sawyer said there have been layoffs amounting to 25 per cent, or 250 men, in the carpenter's union.

Some work is proceeding without regular inspections, he said. Contractors are hoping for the best when normal inspections resume.

Interim Plan On Inspections

A resolution establishing an interim system for approving building and plumbing inspections during the current civic labor dispute was passed Wednesday by the Capital Regional Board.

The board noted that the month-long strike-lockout involving the Canadian Union of Public Employees has left the district with insufficient staff to process applications for building and plumbing permits and subsequent inspections.

So for the duration of the dispute, the board has agreed building permits may be processed by Bill Gerry, director of engineering, provided drawings, specifications and ;lot plans are certified by a disinterested professional engineer or registered architect as meeting the building bylaw.

Building inspections required by the bylaw may be accepted by Gerry where they are made by a disinterested engineer or architect who certifies construction meets bylaw terms.

Plumbing inspections required by the bylaw may be accepted where the inspection is made by a disinterested master plumber who certifies the installation meets conditions of the bylaw.

But construction involving septic tank installations, which also requires a permit and inspections, will face delays because such inspections are being carried out by one man. Dr. Allan Arneil, the regional health officer.

Arneil, who has been conducting the final inspections on septic tanks, said today it is going to be difficult to find time to add initial inspections.

He has conducted about 25 final inspections over the past three weeks, most of which have called for re-inspections. At the moment he has a list of seven new installations to inspect, 18 re-inspections and seven malfunctioning systems to deal with. He has been spending weekends, early mornings and evenings on this work.

Foreshore Wharves Illegal

Construction of wharves across foreshore in the northern part of North Saanich municipality is illegal, the B.C. Appeal Court ruled this week.

The court upheld an earlier finding that the owner of land adjacent to foreshore does not have the right to build wharves on the foreshore and the owner of the foreshore could claim trespass.

Kathleen Mary Murray and E.M.P. Estates Limited, represented by D. M. Gordon and P. W. Klassen, appealed the decision last year of Mr. Justice George Rae. North Saanich municipality, which leases the foreshore from the crown, was represented by C. O. D. Branson.

The appeal judgment, written by Mr. Justice Peter Seaton, said each of the appellants constructed a wharf on and across the foreshore adjacent to their land on pilings driven into the soil and pots set on concrete footings. North Saanich claimed this was trespass.

"A number of American decisions," said Mr. Justice Seaton, "hold that the riparian owner (an owner of land adjoining water) may build a wharf, not because he has a right to erect a structure on the foreshore, but because he has a right of access to the deeper water that he cannot enjoy except by means of a wharf.

"It is said that he has the right to make his right of access practical. That rule has not been adopted elsewhere, in Canada or in England, and I do not think that we should adopt it in British Columbia.

"The rule as it now stands protects the right of access of the riparian owner. Except in the exercise of that right the riparian owner can do nothing to the foreshore inconsistent with the foreshore owner's rights. Short of interfering with navigation or the rights of the other, each has freedom.

"If the riparian owner is to build a wharf to make better use of his right of access or the foreshore owner is to do something in the use of the foreshore that would interfere with the right of access, they must reach agreement.

"In the absence of agreement the natural state of things will continue. That is as it must be if ownership of the foreshore and riparian rights are each to be of value."

Ticket Wicket Extended

The Greater Victoria traffic ticket wicket in room 102 at the Law Courts at 850 Burdett has extended hours to operate from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays.

The wicket was moved earlier this month from Victoria provincial court at 633 Fisgard because of CUPE picketing.

Officials said traffic tickets and fines may still be mailed to 633 Fisgard. This applies to everything from $2 parking fines to payments of $500 or more for major offences.

Ask The Times

Q: Who, where and when really first said "fuddle duddle?" L.W.

A: This epitome of Canadianisms is unrecorded until Pierre Trudeau told reporters outside the House of Commons on Feb. 16, 1971, that was the expression he had uttered after a question from across the floor from MP John Lundrigan. It evoked an opposition reply recorded by Colombo's Canadian Quotations as: "The prime minister wishes to be obscene and not heard."

'Merry Days' Pushed By Chamber

A two-pronged publicity campaign by the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce to advertise Victoria's appeal as a tourist centre and stimulate convention business, is under way.

The chamber is distributing 30,000 leaflets to cities across Canada and the U.S., listing the activities and attractions of the Victorian Days celebrations May 17 through 25.

"Visit us for nine wonderful days of merriment as the Capital City sheds her inhibitions, lifts her skirt a little bit higher and frolics like a youngster," the pamphlet's text urges.

To stimulate interest in a more general way, the chamber is considering the publication of a 50-page booklet on all aspects of the region's life, although some members doubt that the proposed 5,000 copies would make the exercise worthwhile.

At Wednesday's meeting of the chamber's board of directors, an alternative discussed was to publish a newspaper supplement in tabloid form.

Three Bs Off to Far East

Balloons, books and baubles will be part of the stock in trade aboard four Esquimalt-based naval vessels when they leave Sunday at 2 p.m. for a three-month cruise to the Far East.

"Canadian balloons and other goodies will be aboard," a service spokesman said today," to be used for the shipboard parties the ships will give underprivileged children in the ports they visit.

"They'll be promoting Canada and things Canadian and these kind of parties are the best kind of social activity for the sailors. They always get turned on by the kids."

He said crates of books have been stowed aboard. These will be delivered to English Speaking Union branches in various ports.

"There's also a supply of various small items from Ottawa, the North West Territories and the western provinces, maple leaf pins, tourist pamphlets, maps etc," he added.

Capt. John Rodocanachi will be in command of the four-ship flotilla, which includes three destroyers of the 2nd Canadian Destroyer Squadron — HMCS Terra Nova, HMCS Kootenay and HMCS Restigouche, as well as the support ship HMCS Provider.

Commanded by Capt. Colin Shaw, the Provider will be with the destroyers until they return to Esquimalt, replenshing them with fuel, stores and provisions while the ships are under way.

The itinerary includes calls at ports in Hawaii, Hong Kong, the Philippines, South Korea and Japan.

While they're away from their home port, the four ships will take part in two major exercises — one off Hawaii and the other off the Philippines.

Since the submarine HMCS Rainbow has been taken out of service, ships of CFB Esquimalt must rely on submarines from other countries to get their anti-submarine warfare training.

Thirty-two members of naval reserve divisions from across Canada and 25 Royal Canadian Sea Cadets from the western provinces will be in the four ships, carrying out duties alongside members of the regular force.

"Having the reserves with us will allow the honing of reserve skills and provide valuable assistance to the regular forces," Rodocanachi said. "With the cadets, we will be expanding a pool of high calibre naval recruits."

The Provider will slip her lines Saturday, going to Port Moody to take on supplies.

She will join the three destroyers Sunday as they make their way through the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

MUSIC, MOVEMENT, DRAMA CLASSES FOR CHILDREN

Classes for children between the ages of four and 10 years, in music, movement and drama, are being offered at the Emily Carr Arts Centre, 207 Government.

The classes have been designed to explore various facets of sound, sound-making, body awareness and movement, sensory awareness and some aspects of creative drama.

Elspeth Strang, who will conduct the classes, says they will be structured in the sense that she will be guiding and directing the activities at first.

Four, five and six-year-olds will meet on Fridays from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. Singing action songs and playing musical games will be a part of the activity. Later may come simple puppet-making and stories with felt board.

Six to 10-year-olds will meet Saturdays from 10 a.m. to noon.

Apart from concentration, breathing and relaxation exercises, this class will experiment with the sounds made by various materials and will get into making simple instruments.

Imagination exercises, drama games and as weather permits, outdoor explorations will be part of the learning process.

There is a minimal charge for the classes of $2 per Saturday session and $1 for Fridays.

Grocery Bills Too High—Board

OTTAWA (CP) — The grocery bills for most families are up to one-third higher than necessary yet many are improperly nourished, the Food Prices Review Board said today.

In a 41-page report on the cost of nutritious eating, the board said a four-person family can buy enough food for a basically sound diet for about $2,000 a year but now is spending about $3,000.

The report, the board's 29th since it was set up in mid-1973 to oversee rising food prices, said that despite sharply rising costs, people can have nutritionally better diets for less money.

It proposed eight recommendations for government and food industry action to improve the general level of knowledge about sensible eating habits and to encourage shoppers to buy cheaper and more nutritious foods.

Among the board's findings:

—The average cost of a nutritious diet for a four-person family has risen 52 per cent in the last five years, to $39.98 a week in December, 1974, from $25.42 in October, 1969.

—During the same period the Consumer Price Index for food consumed at home rose by the same 52 per cent.

—The cost of a week's supply of nutritious food varies from a high of $41.95 in Vancouver to a low of $37.96 in Ottawa-Hull.

—Although good nutrition is within the reach of the average person a "sizable portion" of the population is not properly nourished.

—Nutrition problems have grown worse because of the rapid rise in food costs.

—There is a "serious lack of awareness" about nutrition at all levels of society in the country.

—Key nutrients including protein, vitamin C, iron and calcium are missing from the diets of many persons, including the aged, women of childbearing age and even the very young.

—About 91 per cent of the population could afford a nutritious diet if shoppers knew how to substitute more expensive foods for cheaper foods with the same nutritional value.

The report called for intensified efforts to educate the public about food-buying practices and said the formulation of government food policies "must be centred on the nutritional needs of Canadians."

The federal government should consider changing food enrichment regulations for some foodstuffs to counter widespread iron and calcium deficiencies, the board said. In addition the food industry should devote more advertising to nutrition information programs.

The continuing federal-provincial review of the social security system should include consideration of the cost of nutritious eating. The federal government should set up an advisory body to make recommendations on nutrition and health, the report said.

There also should be greater federal-provincial co-ordination of studies on nutrition-related health problems.

RENEGOTIABLE 3-YEAR CONTRACT

Marriage a Business Pact?

TORONTO (UPI) — Psychologist Ernest Moss, a marriage counsellor, thinks marriages should be like a formal business pact, an initial contract renegotiable after three years.

The contract should be signed before the partners exchange vows to knock all that "starry-eyed nonsense" out of marriage.

"Couples should come to grips with reality before taking that final, fateful step," says Moss, who runs a marriage counselling and "personality development" centre.

"The possibility of a couple remaining happily together is increased enormously if they've drawn up a well-considered marriage contract.

"I would certainly not marry without a contract setting out freedoms and responsibilities for both partners," said Moss, who is short, stout and in his late 40s.

Moss also urges premarital psychological examinations to avoid marriages bound to turn out unhappily.

"It is not being cynical but realistic," he said.

"If you could see the marriages I have seen, day after day for years and years, you would realize the need for as many safeguards as possible." Moss believes marriage contracts — legally enforceable by a court of law — have become almost a necessity these days because many traditional views about marriage are no longer valid.

"Many brides today have no intention of committing themselves to housework or childbearing," he said, "and many young men refuse to relinquish their freedom of movement and still want to enjoy pleasures with other women."

Pacts may cover almost any aspect of married life: handling of money, division of property if the couple part, contraception, religion, drinking, extramarital affairs — and in-laws.

"In-laws who live in the same city should never be permitted to barge into a couple's home whenever they want," says Moss. "It should be by invitation only."

A woman, worried by her husband-to-be's drinking habits, inserted a clause stating she would warn him only once at parties that he was imbibing too freely.

If he paid no heed, she would go home alone. The husband then would have no right to enter the house for three days. When he did rejoin his wife, she was under an obligation not to mention the incident.

In another contract, a husband assumed responsibility for taking the children to school every day. If he failed to do so, he had to do the shopping — a job normally done by his wife.

However, sex — especially the frequency of sexual relations — often forms a sensitive area when a contract is being considered.

"Generally we try to reach a verbal agreement," Moss said. "We don't like to include such items in a written undertaking because it may have to be discussed openly in court one day.

"Also, while a court will uphold a property agreement between man and wife, it is unlikely to enforce clauses governing sexual behavior."

Roommate Yearns For Family Ties

DEAR ABBY: I have been living with Don for two years. I am 22 and he is 25.

I hear girls at the office talking about bringing covered dishes to family gatherings, going to his folks' or hers for dinner, or for the weekend, or the holidays, and I get more heartsick every day.

I've begun to realize what marriage is all about. It's really belonging to someone who loves you enough to want to make you a member of his family.

Don is always telling me what a wonderful arrangement we have, and how much he loves me.

The past several months, I've been asking myself: "If it's so wonderful and he loves me so much, why do we lie, sneak around and let people assume we are married?"

Why doesn't he ask me to marry him, and become a member of his family? They don't even know I exist. — Heartsick

DEAR HEARTSICK: Because he doesn't want a legal commitment. And if he is able to get all the benefits of marriage with none of the responsibilities, who can blame him? I am assuming he didn't kidnap you. You agreed to live with him without marriage. You walked into it of your own free will, and you're free to walk out. Why don't you? I think you're ready.

DEAR ABBY: Is it unmannerly for a girl to wear a hat or a knitted covering on her head when she's inside a building?

Our principal always asks the girls and boys both to remove their hats when they are in school.

He said that someone should write to DEAR ABBY and ask about it, and if you said it was all right, he would ask the boys to remove their hats when they're inside the building.

He said he didn't believe that anyone would write to you and ask. Well, I'm writing. — Student

DEAR STUDENT: Customs, rules and traditions are made up by those in authority, and they differ drastically. (In some houses of worship it's considered disrespectful to wear a hat. In others, the head must be covered. In some schools, all that's required of the students is that they come with their heads on . . . and what's ON their heads is no consequence.)

Your principal should know the rules of your school — and so should you. Obey the rules. If they're unfair or pointless — change the rules.

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years, but never thought I'd be writing to you.

Now, my problem: A close relative of mine was recently married. The wedding was out of state so we didn't attend, but we sent a wedding present that cost over $100.

Today, I received a letter from the bride's mother. Along with it, she sent five pictures of the wedding. She wrote, "The pictures are $1 each. You can square it with us later." In other words, "pay up."

Abby, I think this is in very poor taste. In fact, I have never heard of "selling" wedding pictures to close relatives.

Should I return the pictures? (I don't really want them.) Or should I keep the pictures and send her five dollars? Or just keep the pictures and not send anything? —Stunned.

DEAR STUNNED: Return the pictures with a note thanking her for "sharing" them with you.

USC 'Miracle': $2.7M Goal Passed

elizabeth forbes

Beside me as I write this column is Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova's jubilant year-end report, recording the fact that "a miracle has happened."

The USC "sailed right over the top" in its recent campaign across Canada for $2,275,000 in funds and gifts-in-kind.

Added to that amount, she writes, is a further $113,925, representing the cost of five additional carloads of skim milk powder ..." to vastly expand our tragically urgent feeding programs among the hungriest and most suffering children, the very old and the very ill in Bangladesh."

The report was written on New Year's Eve in Dr. Lotta's "beloved Ottawa office ... with thousands of little multi-colored electric lights flashing on and off below on the Sparks Street Mall to celebrate with me our still unbelievable miracle."

It goes on to say that "now we do not need to worry about our 143 urgent commitments in 13 countries on three continents. Now we can fulfil all our pledges as a partner and a friend of countless children and adults in desperate need."

Contributors to this "USC Miracle," as Dr. Lotta sees it, range "from coast-to-coast and in age from the youngest to the very oldest."

They belong in all income brackets, all ethnic extractions, all religious beliefs and every educational level.

"We received money collected during family reunions, wedding anniversaries, from refunds in the Income Tax Department, and there was even a donation in memory of a tiny twin baby who died almost immediately after birth."

In a part of the report reserved for human interest stories, Dr. Lotta writes that a woman lost a beloved pet cat and was so distraught she made a vow that if she recovered the cat she would give up to $500 to the USC. The cat was recovered "and we received the money."

An elderly man in Penticton sent $25 after gathering bottles and picking cherries. He wrote that "it feels like real giving, sweat-of-the-brow type. I thought you would like to know."

The conductor of a baroque music concert at Hart House in Toronto gave his fee to the USC and another man who remembered the soup he received in his school in Europe during the first winter after the end of the Second World War, sent a generous donation.

A concert organized by a group of East Indians near Duncan, at which a blind Indian musician played music with water-filled clay pots, netted $200 earmarked for Bangladesh. A six-year-old in Prince George sent in three nickels, glued to a piece of cardboard.

Back in Ontario a trio of youngsters staged a garage sale and on the side, offered kisses at 10 cents each.

Turned out the kisses were quick licks from an ecstatic, tail-wagging family dog. Nevertheless, dimes were bravely handed over because they were destined for the USC.

Dr. Lotta speaks too, of support given her and the USC by the press, radio, TV and cablevision.

Here the Victoria Times is mentioned for its "fantastically successful" drive to fund a carload of powdered milk for Bangladesh. (Total money donated by USC friends for this effort was $21,425.39, only $1,360 short of the amount needed.)

Government sources of help are also listed in the report, including the British Columbia Agricultural Aid Committee that "once again generously stood by our side with two carloads of evaporated milk for undernourished children in Lesotho and Bangladesh and $21,600 in cash, earmarked for projects in Lesotho."

At one place in the report Dr. Lotta asks — how did this latest USC miracle come about?

How was it that with the rising cost of living, inflation, threats of lay-offs and unemployment that old and new friends "stood so loyally and generously by our side from the very moment our appeal was launched in mid-September?"

She answers that, in part, with "the USC is truly Canadian and its contributors know that all its aid is dispensed to the most defenceless and the most suffering among the little ones, the crippled and the old."

Also that the USC teaches those it helps to produce more and better food, launches health programs combined with family planning, runs night schools and places emphasis on vocational training, all with thought of fostering independance and self-sufficiency.

I would add that it is also the respect and trust Dr. Hitschmanova has gained over the years that helped to make this current drive for funds (and others, too) a success.

I don't believe anyone in the past 30 years has watched more carefully over the disbursing of the money and gift-in-kind that Canada and Canadians have given for the helpless and starving of the world.

Last year on her 22nd survey around the world, she covered 42,000 miles in four hectic months. In that time she inspected every single one of the USC funded programs to ascertain they were efficiently, honestly and humanely run and that they were definitely filling a need.

Soon (if not already) she will be off again on her 23rd tour of inspection. And you can be sure that through this dedicated woman, every penny of the money donated in the recent drive will reach those it was intended to help and that every cup of milk will be given where it is needed most.

Russians Invite Children To Submit Art for Contest

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Hold it.

Before you throw away those gems of nursery school coloring, cryptic crayon and precocious painting piling up on the back of the refrigerator — the Russian embassy is collecting art.

Specifically, children's art from all over the world is solicited by Pionerskaya Pravda, in Moscow, for the Third International Contest of Children's Art under the motif: I See the World.

Work of youngsters aged 5-16 is eligible for the competition for which prizes will be awarded before the best pictures are chosen for exhibit by the Academy of Arts of the U.S.S.R., and these will all merit a badge, diploma and copy of the catalogue.

Fifty of the best will get such prizes as objects of art, linocuts autographed by the artists, books and crafts, and 200 artists will receive the Contest Medal.

The invitation to Canadian children, their parents and school teachers to send in pictures is oriented to peace:

"It is hard to make friends if you do not know the way your far-off friend lives, the way he thinks and what he dreams about," said an embassy announcement mailed to the Times.

But children's drawings are "a peculiar international language of the children. It is due to the drawings that they learn the way their counterparts live abroad and get to know the nature of other countries and their customs."

Pictures drawn without adult assistance within the last two years are eligible and each participant may submit up to 10 examples, while schools and organizations may send 50-60 pictures.

Paint, gouache, pastel, India ink, watercolor, pencil, felt pen, engraving, mosaic, applique, collage, batik or any other medium or technique is acceptable.

Themes may be friendship the struggle for peace, school, family, town and country life, traditional festivals, national holidays, customs, outings, classes, games, nature and the campaign to save the environment.

Drawings may be by individuals or collective efforts, but the deadline for all is April 15, 1975, for receipt by Pionerskaya Pravda, 21 Souschevskaya Street, Moscow, K-30, U.S.S.R.

Each must have on the back the title, first and surname of the artist, age, whether boy or girl, first and surname of teacher if submitted by a school or organization, name of country and full postal address.

Entries may not be returned, but instead will be turned over to the Moscow Museum of Children's Art.

GOOD SAMARITAN Fund donations resulted in this cheque for $4,500 being presented to Art Saunders, board chairman at Victoria General Hospital, by Mrs. Ruby Masters, vice-president and comptroller at radio station CKDA and CFMS. Money has purchased a compact portable respirator for newborn babies with breathing difficulties and a pressurometer to be used principally for shock cases. People in Greater Victoria have donated over $70,000 to date to Good Saraitan fund.

U.S.-India Chill Sets In

WASHINGTON (WP) — U.S. relations with India registered a clear setback Wednesday as a result of the American decision Monday to end the embargo on arms sales to Pakistan.

Indian Foreign Minister Yeshwantrao B. Chavan called off a March 13-14 trip to Washington for the first meeting here of the Indo-American Commission. Secretary of State Henry A Kissinger and Chavan launched the commission in New Delhi last October as evidence of repaired U.S.-Indian relations, which had hit bottom in the Indo-Pakistan war of 1971.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi Wednesday told the Indian parliament that U.S. rearmament of Pakistan "would reopen old wounds and hinder the process of healing and normalization for which we have been working so persistently."

"It is totally spacious," she said, "to argue that arms should be supplied to Pakistan because we in India are developing a self-sufficient defence industry."

To compound the bruises to U.S.-Indian relations, Soviet Defence Minister Marshal Andrei Grechno was completing a three-day trip to India while India's dismay over the American action was being aired. The Soviet Union is India's principal arms supplier, which is one reason why the U.S. ended its 10-year embargo on arms sales to Pakistan and India, which Pakistan anxiously sought and India had opposed.

Ex-Lions Go Free

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — Charges of causing a disturbance in a public place were dismissed Wednesday in provincial court against Harold Garrett Hunsperger and Francis (Bud) Magrum, former members of the British Columbia Lions football team.

Judge Anthony Sarich ruled the evidence presented by Gerhard Felgenhauer, manager of the Discovery Inn, was inadmissable because he laid the charges without having personal information of the incident, court clerk Ken Scott said.

The crown applied to have the information amended, but Judge Sarich refused the motion.

A stay of proceedings was entered on a charge of common assault laid against Magrum by Raymond Krusel after an incident at the Discovery Inn May 27.

On Jan. 28, Mr. Justice A. A. Mackoff of the B.C. Supreme Court, ordered Magrum and Hunsperger to pay $19,500 aggravated and exemplary damages to three men after incidents at two B.C. hotels.

In a written judgment, he said that on April 23, Hunsperger beat Ronald Porter, an assistant maitre de'hotel at a Prince George hotel, after he was told he could not be served immediately because of a staff shortage.

Early Closure For Library

Victoria's central library will close one hour early at 8 p.m. Monday night so members of CUPE's local 410, about 60 library employees, can have a special meeting on negotiation progress.

The meeting was moved ahead from its usual Wednesday time so members could discuss the negotiations held with the Greater Victoria Library Board Feb. 21, and the course of future talks.

$150M ART SALE BY B.C. DEALER

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver gallery owner has been selected to market internationally a $150 million art collection of old masters.

Louis Nuber, director of Exposition Galleries in Vancouver's Gastown area, said the owner of the collection wishes to remain anonymous until most of the collection is sold.

He said the collection is housed in a mid-western U.S. city and buyers must travel to the site to view the paintings.

There is speculation the owner is a Chicago lawyer who owns paintings by such masters as Giovannia Bellini, Correggio, Daumier, Durer, Van Dyck, Rubens and Titian.

Some of the paintings include Bellini's Sacred Conversation, Bernini's Portrait of a Young Man, and Durer's Christ In Gethsemane, Pianello's Portrait of Visconti and Rembrandt's The Pirate, each selling for $5 million.

Nuber said the owner has bypassed the big-name art dealers in New York and London because he has been dodging art thieves.

In letters sent to museums, Nuber said "the owner has asembled this collection over a period 40 years and many of the pieces have been vaulted for as long as 30 years. Prior to their purchase by the present owner, some of the pieces had not surfaced for hundreds of years."

Nuber said most of the pieces have been recognized by art authorities and subjected to scientific dating to support authentications.

"The current appraised value considerably exceeds $150 million," Nuber said.

Singer Ruled Asphyxiated

LANGLEY (CP) — An autopsy has revealed that Deborah Helen Roe, 22, a cocktail waitress and singer whose body was found Saturday, died of asphyxiation, probably due to drowning.

The autopsy also showed she may have been strangled. Her body was found in six inches of water.

Coroner Doug Jack said she had been badly kicked and beaten, and described the killing as "an enraged, frustrated attack." He said the woman was apparently not sexually molested.

Her body was found about a mile south of the area where the body of Barbara Ann Larocque, 22, a Vancouver night club dancer, was found last December.

"It represents some of the finest work Fellini has ever done — which also means that it stands with the best that anyone in films has ever achieved." — Time Magazine

Shelf Mark-Ups Fair—Chamber

OTTAWA (CP) — Companies have a right to make price changes as frequently as they wish without justifying their actions to the government, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce said before a Commons committee studying competition policy proposals Wednesday.

The chamber, representing about 2,700 businesses and 700 boards of trade, called on the government to recognize that inventory profits — realized by marking up prices on stock already in inventory — are a merchant's right.

Committee member Simma Holt (L — Vancouver-Kingsway) took exception to the chamber's position, terming marking up existing inventory "the height of gouging and cheating in the marketplace." She charged the chamber was trying to offer "a rational for cheating . . ." by merchants.

John Morrison, one of three Chamber of Commerce delegates testifying, said merchants have to bear losses on inventory when markets are falling, so they should be able to deal with existing stock and mark it up as they see fit.

The chamber fears that provisions in the competition policy proposals to outlaw double ticketing — adding successive price stickers to items on the shelves — might also be interpreted to prohibit any repricing of inventory goods.

Former corporate affairs minister Herb Gray, who sponsored the current bill to amend the combines law before being dropped from the cabinet last August, disagreed with the chamber's suggestion that provisions against misleading warranties and guarantees should be dropped.

The chamber argued the provisions restrict traditional freedom to contract. However, Gray pointed out consumers rarely have a chance to bargain about product warranties, so there is a special need to protect them against misleading guarantees.

Change of Counsel Postpones Trial

Trial of a 33-year-old Montreal man on two charges arising from a major drug seizure was adjourned in county court today to June 4, a year after the charges were laid.

Gordon Robert Drainville is accused of unlawful possession of methamphetamine (speed) for the purpose of trafficking and unlawfully trafficking in methamphetamine.

Court was told this morning that Drainville has changed lawyers and his new counsel, Harold Turnham, had only received instructions Wednesday. Previous counsel was Lawrence Hill, whose withdrawal from the case was accepted by the court today.

Turnham told Judge E. J. C. Stewart the preliminary hearing last year was waived so he didn't have a transcript of evidence. He asked for an adjournment to June 4 to prepare his case.

Asked by Judge Stewart why there has been such a delay in obtaining new counsel, Turnham said he didn't know. Drainville is a resident of Montreal and "apparently" there was some conflict of interest between the accused and his previous lawyer.

Drainville was charged last June 7 following police seizure of five pounds of speed in a downtown hotel said to have a street value of more than $500,000.

CUPE Accepts 22%, C.O.L.A.

NANAIMO — An over-all pay increase averaging 22 per cent and a cost-of-living clause were among provisions in a contract ratified by the regional board here with Local 401, Canadian Union of Public Employees.

The union represents regional district employees under an autonomous section of the local which also represents the city of Nanaimo staff. CUPE membership had already ratified the agreement, reached early this month after weeks of bargaining.

The one-year contract ending Dec. 31, 1975, makes the starting wage of a clerk-stenographer $705 a month. A wages or jobs.
transit bus driver will earn $6.77 an hour, and the chief operator at the pollution control treatment plant $8.25 an hour.

Under the agreement, beginning April 1, quarterly wage adjustments will be geared directly to the cost of living index, as issued by Statistics Canada. For every 1.05-point increase in the index, employees will receive an additional three cents per hour.

The contract also includes a job security clause.

Water Rates to Rise

NANAIMO — Increased water rates lie ahead for consumers in this area, but officials have yet fo announe how much they will be and when they will take effect.

In the annual report of Greater Nanaimo Water District, treasurer Wally Ilott said the average wholesale cost of water for Nanaimo and surrounding districts jumped about 75 per cent in January — from 28.51 cents to 49.7 cents per thousand gallons.

And the increases, he warned, will have to be passed on to the customer.

The report showed consumption in the water district increased by 29 million gallons to a total of 1.63 billion gallons.

More Police Needed

NANAIMO — To cope with increased vandalism here since the city was amalgamated June. 1, Mayor Frank Ney says Nanaimo's RCMP detachment should be beefed up by at least 26 officers — almost double the present strength of 31.

Ney said Wednesday the police-to-population ratio was cut by almost two-thirds when amalgamation boosted the population to 36,500 from 15,000.

He said he has met with RCMP officials to discuss the problem.

Nicholson Promoted

NANAIMO — Mayor Frank Ney has announced the appointment of Howard Nicholson, long-time city clerk and comptroller, to the position of the city's executive officer.

The position is one of several new ones to be created in the city administration, following the city's amalgamation Jan. 1 with several surrounding improvement districts.

DUNCAN OBJECTS, CENTRE MOVES

NORTH COWICHAN — Local municipal concern over the proposal to site a minimum security correction centre near a junior high school has persuaded provincial correction branch officials to look for another location in the municipality.

Tim Thimsen, director of provincial community correction centres, announced following a meeting Tuesday night with North Cowichan council that thebranch has withdrawn its proposal for a 20-unit correctional centre in a rest home behind Mount Prevost junior high school, two miles from Duncan city centre.

"I think their concern was genuine," Thimsen said later. "We are not interested in offending anybody . . . we want community support not opposition to this centre."

At the closed-door meeting, aldermen apparently voiced concern that the location would generate fear in the minds of parents, despite assurances from the correction branch officials that the centre would not be "a home for junkies, a commune or a half-way house."

VANDALS HIT GARDENS

Plagued by vandalism, watching the plants grow is the least thing on allotment gardens supervisor Richard Keepence's mind today.

Fine mesh now covers every window of the trailer, which serves as head office for all Saanich allotment gardens.

This week, a recently-built tool shed which houses a rototiller and hoses, was broken into from the roof.

On the same night a B.C. Hydro meter which services the trailer was smashed, and power cut off.

Plans to build a greenhouse may be delayed because delicate plants, relying on electric heat, could be ruined.

OUTLYING HEALTH UNITS EYED

The Capital Regional board has asked the provincial government for additional money to establish two innovative health care units in outlying areas of the district.

The units would be on Mayne Island and at Port Renfrew, Dr. Allan Arneil, regional health officer, said Wednesday.

There is a year-round population on Mayne Island of about 400 which swells to 4,000 in the summer but there is no doctor on the island.

Arneil said the board would like to establish a suitable office there for a nurse-practitioner which would also be available for the doctor who visits the island weekly from Ganges on Salt Spring Island.

A similar unit is needed at Port Renfrew where travel time of health care workers visiting there is expensive.

Arneil said it may be practical to have such a unit undertaken as a joint venture of several groups.

The proposals are being considered by Health Minister Dennis Cocke following a meeting with him earlier this week.

Dollar Decision Delayed

VIENNA — The 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries Wednesday night postponed until June a decision on whether it will continue to calculate international prices in American dollars.

The OPEC countries are concerned that the declining value of the dollar in relation to other major currencies is robbing them of too much purchasing power, and some members want to shift to a system of calculation that will make up the losses.

If such an attempt is made — and if the dollar continues to remain at depressed levels— The practical effect will be to raise the cost of oil imported by the U.S. That would mean that U.S. consumers will have to pay higher prices for such petroleum products as gasoline and heating fuels.

However, the OPEC membership is divided about what substitute pricing mechanism, if any, to adopt. Because of this, the 13 oil ministers, who are holding a three-day meeting here, decided to refer the measure to OPEC's expert economic commission for further study.

Ashamed Thief 'Sorry'

TOKYO — Jobless and hungry, Misami Hisamatsu, 27, took $31 from a housewife in a robbery Feb. 18. Today he walked into a police station and surrendered because he had had to renege on a promise made to his victim.

Hisamatsu told police he could not keep his promise to the woman at the time of the theft to repay her money in one week.

Hisamatsu broke into the home of Toshiko Chinen, 31, tied her up and took $62 from her purse.

Mrs. Chinen pleaded with Hisamatsu that her own family was short of money. "It's wrong to take it from us just because you're hard up," she said.

Hisamatsu apologized and gave back half the money. Then he promised to repay the rest in a week.

The week was up Tuesday. Hisamatsu did not appear.

He came to the police station today, with only 52 cents in his pocket.

He told officers he had been unable to find work and had spent Mrs. Chinen's money on food.

Muhammad 'Lives On' In His Son

MUHAMMAD
. . . the successor

CHICAGO (WP) — Amid joyous shouts of "long live Muhammad," the Black Muslims Wednesday proclaimed Wallace Muhammad their leader, successor to his father, The Honorable Elijah Muhammad, as a prophet, a messenger from Allah.

Elijah Muhammad, who was 77, died Monday in Mercy Hospital here of congestive heart failure.

Speaker after speaker, however proclaimed that only his temporal body died, because he lives on spiritually in the person of his son, and his other children and relatives, collectively referred to as "the royal family."

Closed-circuit television carried to all parts of the country this "Saviour Day" ceremony, held in honor of the birthday of W. D. Fard, the "Master W. Farrad Muhammad," who founded the Muslims in 1930, and whom they believe to be the earthly appearance of Allah himself.

The Muslims have taught through the years that Wallace D. Muhammad, 41, was the only one of Elijah Muhammad's sons who was named by Fard.

Lottery Win A Problem

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — The Hawaiian holiday sounded like a good prize to win for two Canada Winter Games lottery ticket buyers — until they won.

For Robert and Mary Napowcappo of Vauxhall, who won the excursion prize in the fourth Winter Games lottery draw Feb. 11, the trip posed problems.

"We'd love to go but it's impossible . . . my husband and I both work and we have four children at home who would need babysitting," Mrs. Napowcappo said today in an interview.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In duplicate bridge, the fulfillment of a lowly one notrump contract (when everybody else failed to fulfill it) is worth more in match points than the fulfillment of a vulnerable grand slam contract if everybody else also fulfills the latter. The reason, of course, is that in duplicate bridge you score one point for each pair whose score you beat; and a half point for each pair whose score you tie.

Here is a deal in which our South declarer received a bushelfull of points for fulfilling a one notrump contract. The deal arose in a tournament.

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH
♠ Q 6 3 2
♥ A 9 6 5 3
♦ 1 0 6

WEST	EAST
♠ 9 4	♠ K 1 0 8 7
♥ J 1 0 2	♥ K 4
♦ K J 7 3	♦ 9 8 5
♣ A Q 8 5	♣ K 7 3 2

SOUTH
♠ A J 5
♥ Q 8 7
♦ A Q 4 2
♣ J 6 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
1 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ♠.

Opening lead: Nine of spades.

On West's nine of spades opening lead both dummy and East played low, South winning the trick with his jack. At trick two declarer came up with a nicely-conceived deceptive play: he led a low club towards dummy's ten-spot! The purpose of this play was to implant in the opponents' minds the thought that he was interested in developing the club suit; and, thereby, to dissuade them from leading clubs.

West played low to the club lead, and East's king captured the trick. East, having observed that his partner had opened the nine of spades from what was obviously a short suit, concluded that the reason why partner hadn't opened his long suit was that partner's long suit was hearts, dummy's bid suit.

So, at trick three, in an attempt to establish West's presumed heart suit, East banged down the heart king. Declarer permitted this card to win, since if he took it, there would be no way of reaching dummy to cash the to-be-established heart suit.

When West's discouraging deuce of hearts appeared on East's lead of the king, East abandoned hearts, and shifted to a diamond. But it was belated, for declarer now had his seven tricks: two spades, four hearts, and the diamond ace.

Had East returned a club (or a diamond) at trick three, the contract would have been defeated. But how could East have diagnosed the true situation around the table?

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Friday, Feb. 28.

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Roadblocks are present for a purpose. Heed slow-down warning signals. One who painted free-and-easy picture was misinformed. Now you gain understanding and realize meaning of challenge. Pisces, Virgo persons figure prominently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Pick and choose — avoid carelessness based on emotion minus logic. Best now to finish rather than to initiate projects. Key is to mend differences with co-workers, to streamline services, to deliver what has been promised. Aries, Libra individuals are likely to be in picture.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Lunar aspelt tells of differences with young persons, emotional outbursts, money involvement which requires "sane discussion." Get to heart of matters. Hold off on accusations. One you care for does want reconciliation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Trust intutive intellect. You are able to sense what is to occur. Aquarius, Leo persons could figure prominently. Accent is on revision of ideas, programs. Relatives may be in "fighting mood." You are asked to assume heavier responsibility. Go along but be cautious.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You tend now to be confused, slightly "flushed." Means you may be asking too much, too soon. Gemini, Sagittarius could figure prominently. Avoid making definite commitment. What surrounds you is due to sudden change. You will want to be in flexible position.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't mix money and friendship at risk of losing in both areas. Be specific. Check details. Review basics. Do your homework. Aquarius, Scorpio and Leo persons could be in picture. Pull tight on financial reins.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be ready to analyze and arrive at deductions, conclusions. Plans have been changed. Budget has been revamped. That may be confusing but should not be "tragic." Refuse to abandon sense of humor. One in position to help is impressed with your potential.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Home life can become more harmonious. Taurus, Libra persons figure prominently. Behind scenes, one you have practically forgotten is battling for your rights.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Friends may mean well but they tend to get you inextricably involved in complicated situations. Refuse to commit yourself to definite course. Element of deception is present, deliberate or otherwise. Romance should not be ruled out of picture.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): You know where you stand, how much pressure to exert. Older person, who fascinates you, will try to do something practical for your benefit. Adhere to principles. What was a losing proposition could be something else. Extra time and work will be your twin allies.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You can strike chord of universal appeal; means you get chance to test pulse of public. Enlarge horizons. See beyond the immediate. Get range of sound and fury. Aries, Taurus and Libra persons will keep you busy.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Direct approach is path to success. Strive to be you. Means be original. Stick to what you know. Shove off any tendency to pretend. What has been taboo becomes open for discussion and action. Leo, Aquarius could be involved.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are direct, independent, creative and somewhat arrogant. Leo and Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. January and October are your most significant months of 1975. You are a poet, artist — with practical ambitions. You are jealous, passionate and tend to become involved in "dangerous" emotional triangles.

Peanuts Possible Crop Here

The listing of Peanuts in Canadian seed catalogs has always intrigued me, but as yet no attempt has been made to grow this vegetable.

A vegetable it is, not a true nut. The name "pea-nut" comes from the plant's relationship to the pea, both being leguminous vines, and from the seeds being in a semi-hard fibrous case like many nuts.

Although the seed are also known as Goobers and Pindars, the recognized common name is Ground-nuts because they develop and mature under the soil something like potatoes.

The attractive yellow, pea-like flowers that appear on the vines are staminate (male flowers), the productive pistillate flowers being inconspicuous. After pollination, the stems of the pistillate flowers elongate, bend down, and bury their tips in the soil where the "nuts", or seed capsules, develop.

Arachis hypogaea, the botanical name in case you want to look up the fine points of culture in your gardening encyclopedia; is a tender annual, native to Brazil.

From Virginia, south and west, Arachis is an important forage and hay crop, also an excellent soil improver since the plants fix their own nitrogen from the air and improve poor soils. The crop succeeds best in a sandy well drained loam.

Cattle and hogs are turned into the fields, the former to browse the foliage, the latter to root for the nuts. As a hay crop it is similar to alfalfa.

The variety sold for growing this far north, Early Spanish, has been selected for early maturity and will give a reasonable crop in most parts of Canada, especially on south facing slopes in a warm sandy soil.

Few local gardens will have naturally ideal conditions, but no difficulties should be encountered in providing artificial conditions that would be suitable. Sandy ground beds in a greenhouse or plastic plant shelter should prove good.

My plan, when a few moments are found for experimenting, would be to build an enclosure of shiplap about 60 cms. high (2 ft.) and large enough for a planting of peanuts, sweet peppers, and okra.

The soil would first be dug and the subsoil loosened for good drainage, then covered with 30 cms. (12 ins.) of finely screened compost mixed with a goodly amount of coarse sand. Since the plants are legumes, and like all legumes do best in poorer soils, the mixture should have the sand content predominating.

Seed sowing is recommended from mid-May to early June, the nuts being removed from the shells and planted 10 cms. apart, 3 cms. deep in rows one metre apart. Mid-May would be a suitable date here if glass covers are available to put over the enclosure on cool or frosty nights until mid-June.

In this enclosure, summer heat would be trapped around the plants, the sandy soil would hold a good warmth during the cooler nights, and watering could be more easily adjusted to the needs of the plants, and withheld as the nuts mature.

Until one became familiar with this crop under local conditions, it would be necessary to grope in the soil under the plants for a few nuts to assess their progress during early September.

The vines, roots, and seed pods are lifted intact before the first frost for the locality in which the crop is being grown, and hung for a couple of weeks to mature and dry.

The pods are then collected, and if dry, or when dry, the common procedure is to roast them at 150 degs. C. (300 F.) for one hour, stirring frequently, but not everybody is interested in roasted groundnuts.

Raw peanuts, or ground nuts, have long been known as a nutritious food if only for hogs, and we now find them being added to protein recipes by up-to-date cooks.

But ground-nuts, or peanuts, are not readily available in the raw state, most being sold roasted and salted, which lowers their protein value and adds salt which is not acceptable in the recipes.

This suggests that a supply of raw nuts from the garden would be welcome, and once we learn the requirements for a good crop, there may be a surplus for roasting and salting.

Vector Search Resumes

At 6 a.m. Friday the Victoria-based hydrographic vessel Vector will begin another search for 340 tons of deadly chlorine that has been lying on the ocean floor of the Strait of Georgia since Wednesday, Feb. 19.

"We have no intention of abandoning this search, which will occupy the next five days," Herb Buchanan, regional director of the ministry of transport's marine services division in Vancouver, promised.

The four railway tank cars of liquid chlorine were swept over the side when a barge being towed by the tug Chieftain III overturned.

An emergency meeting was held in Victoria Wednesday to study the data gathered by the Vector in her previous search for the cars and the three Esquimalt-based destroyers, who used their submarine detection equipment to try and find the cars of chlorine.

MoT spokesman, Des Allard of Vancouver said scientists from his department, the national defence department, energy, mines and resources department and the environment department attended Wednesday's meeting.

The destroyers had detected various locations of metals on the ocean floor, Allard said, but had no equipment to see whether the metal was the chlorine containers or the iron ore deposits known to be on the sea bed.

In her new sweep, the Vector will use a magnetometer to detect metal, combined with side scan sonar, which will take pictures.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 19-year-old Saanich woman, charged with defrauding the department of human resources of $596, was sentenced in Victoria provincial court Wednesday to two months in jail.

Judith Foster, of 660 Wilson, had pleaded guilty Feb. 5.

Prosecutor Clarence Vause said Foster had obtained social assistance from the Sidney office from Sept. 30 to Dec. 14 while she was receiving welfare cheques from the Saanich office.

Judge William Ostler cited several higher court rulings and said "welfare authorities have enough difficulties without having to put up with fraud. Others similarly minded should be so warned."

McLean, of 810 Hereward, had pleaded guilty Feb. 7 to banging the head of the woman friend against a wall and punching her in the face.

In addition to his suspended sentence, McLean was also placed on six months probation and ordered to attend Metchosin Camp when directed by the probation officer.

Nelson said he was drunk at the time but he and his girlfriend "are getting along real fine now."

McGragh has been in custody since he was charged Dec. 10 with robbery with violence.

He had been refused bail by Ostler Jan. 17, but the judge made a change after an application by defence lawyer Douglas MacFarlane.

MacFarlane said trial had been scheduled for March 4 but could not now be held until May 8.

A total of $275 in fines was levied on two men after they pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana.

Donald Ian Restall, 19, of 946 Oliver, was fined $200. Police said they had found a small quantity of marijuana in his possession early Wednesday. Restall is a third-time offender, the crown said.

Hugh Henry Rapanos, 24, of 1249 Rockland, received a $75 fine. He was checked by police Feb. 5 in the 700-block Government.

Marketing Head Named

Dr. George Winter of Vancouver has been chosen as chairman of the B. C. marketing board, Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said Wednesday.

Winter, chairman of the University of B.C.'s department of Agricultural Economics, was chosen at the board's first meeting, held in Victoria Wednesday.

Vice-chairman is George Okulitch of Vancouver, former general manager of the Fraser Valley Milk Producers Association, the minister said.

Barrett Fears U.S. Deals

SEATTLE (AP) — Canadians are not anxious to enter into any international energy policy with the U.S. for fear they would get the short end of the deal, Premier Dave Barrett said Wednesday.

Canadians "interpret it to mean 'once the United States' energy sources are used up, then we'll use up Canada's,'" Barrett said.

He said the assumptions that Canada can go on supplying energy resources forever are unrealistic.

"We can't. We don't have the capacity or, at this point, the desire," he said.

Speaking at a World Trade Club luncheon, Barrett said the loss of Canadian identity and control over resources is beginning to reverse.

After years of being an "economical banana republic," of being taken for granted by itself and friends on the international scene, Canada is recognizing the fact that its resources cannot go on forever, he said.

Barrett said the U.S. had assumed Canada had unlimited resources and that Canadians had thought so, too.

Now, he said, the 15-year contract with Washington and Oregon for 800 million cubic feet of natural gas a day, an inheritance from a previous administration, is ridiculous and the price "frankly, is too low," in terms of conservation as well as economics.

Natural gas has gone up to a $1 a 1,000 cubic feet from 32 cents and will have to go up again, he said. Barrett has said he wants it raised to $1.93.

The price of Alaskan fuel is $2 a 1,000 cubic feet and, he said, and it is absurd to expect Canada to charge the U.S. less than they charge themselves.

"We should be charging fair market prices," he said.

Although he said some Canadians are afraid of raising prices because of possible American retaliation, he disagreed. "You're not that kind of people."

Individual conservation in theory, he said, is fine but realistically, he said "voluntary restraint will not work because we are basically a very greedy people."

Barrett said that despite awareness of excessive consumption, "we haven't scaled down our needs for goods," and a point of saturation will be reached. There are, he said, two ways of approaching the dilemma.

"We can go on as we are being fools," or work toward realistic alternatives.

U.S. Firms Blacklisted

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 1,500 U.S. firms have been blacklisted by Arab countries for doing business with Israel, the state department said Wednesday.

Senator Frank Church (Dem., Idaho) made public a 1970 Saudi Arabia blacklist including such companies as Ford Motor Co., Sears Roebuck and Co., RCA, and Xerox Corp.

Harold Saunders, deputy assistant state secretary, confirmed supplying the list to Church as chairman of the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on multinational corporations. He said other Arab countries have their own boycott lists.

President Ford told a news conference in Hollywood, Fla., the blacklist "is totally contrary to the American tradition and repugnant to American principles."

Church said the Arab blacklist, originally a part of the boycott of Israel, has existed since 1946, but has taken on new significance with the increasing oil wealth of the Arab world.

Blacklisting American firms, he said, means they "can't sell to one of the booming markets of the world."

Saunders said U.S. opposition has been made clear repeatedly in diplomatic contacts with the Arab world.

Saunders said "most progress has been made" in dealings with Saudi Arabia.

Col. William Durham of the Army Corps of Engineers testified that Jewish personnel of the corps are not assigned to duty in Saudi Arabia for work on technical and construction contract management performed by U.S. Army engineers under agreements approved by the state department.

Durham said the army engineers in supervising construction work paid for by Saudi Arabia select a list of eligible contractors, which Saudi Arabia has the right to reject. He said the architect and construction firms are recommended on the basis of technical competence, without regard to Jewish management or personnel, and that Saudi Arabia's right of rejection has never been exercised.

Too Old For Science

LONDON (UPI) — Lady Parker was disturbed about experiments involving beagle dogs. She climbed into her limousine and drove to a chemical company, volunteered to chain-smoke cigarettes for three years and offered then to be killed in the interest of science.

The 74-year-old dowager, widow of Britain's former lord chief justice, said she had read about beagles being cancer research projects.

She arrived at ICI Chemicals' Office and offered to chain-smoke 30 cigarettes a day and then be killed so her organs could be examined.

Lady Parker said the company turned her down, saying she was "too old".

56% GOV'T SETTLEMENT BARED

Pact Leak Row Erupts

Both B.C. government and civil service union officials were upset today at the public release of details of several civil service wage contract settlements.

Employers Council of B.C. disclosed the wage increases granted by 13 civil service bargaining components in its regular industrial relations bulletin Wednesday. The details apparently came from Victoria despite an agreement between the government and the B.C. Government Employees Union not to disclose any wage settlements until all components are settled.

The figures reveal wage increases as high as 56 per cent for draftsmen and 44 per cent for junior clerks and forest assistants.

Many of the wage settlements were previously made public knowledge through cabinet orders which officially approved several of the new wage scales. The figures were disclosed in a Times story one month ago in which 44 per cent wage increases were noted.

BCGEU secretary John Fryer expressed anger over the apparent break in the agreement of silence and said the disclosures may affect the agreements now being negotiated with the remaining components.

"It's bloody irresponsible. If something goes wrong, the first to issue a statement saying public service bargaining doesn't work is the (employers') council."

The disclosures may inflame the other components, Fryer said, adding that the 1,800-member trades and crafts component had already rejected a contract proposal, "and if they go out, every institution in the province is in trouble."

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall agreed there was a binding agreement not to release data and said he had stuck by that promise.

"There's been some slip-up. I regret it; in fact I am very annoyed about it," he said.

The disclosures have led to "idiotic use of percentages" by the press, Hall said.

He called the percentages "fatuous" because the emphasis of the wage settlements has been to bring civil servants up to a level comparable with other sectors of the economy.

"If the percentages are accurate they only reflect what was required to bring a clerk-

Highrock st udents set out to "reCUPE" their rights

Students Picket Pickets

With homemade placards around their necks, seven Grade 9 students paraded in front of their school on Head Street Tuesday picketing the picket line set up by the Greater Victoria School Board Employees Union Local 382.

The action caught the four adult pickets by surprise and they were not amused.

"We're being picketed," an agitated woman picket said. "It's unfair for the kids to butt in."

But the students were undeterred by the union pickets' jibes — or the veiled threats to have union officials tell their parents.

"We have nowhere to go," one of the youths said. "There's nothing left but the street corners.

"It wouldn't be so bad if we could use the gym or recreation centre, but we can't."

Some even said they missed going to school, adding the daily 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. class sessions were not enough.

"I don't want to fail my year," one girl said.

The students are trying to get other schools to participate in their Operation ReCUPE and said they intend to picket the legislature, city hall, Crystal Pool and Memorial Arena today.

"It's a free country," said one of the union pickets who declined to give his name. "They have the same rights as we have."

But he wasn't impressed.

Volunteers Face Pickets at Home

Esquimalt's locked out municipal workers may picket the homes and businesses of volunteers manning the police department's phone and radio, a spokesman said today.

The municipality put out a call for the volunteers late Wednesday after a Labor Relations Board ruling established that Esquimalt police officers are not required to perform work normally done by the locked out members of Local 333 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Union officials said today they consider any outside volunteer as "allies to the municipality and if required, we would picket their residence or place of business."

In his ruling Wednesday, LRB chairman Paul Weiler directed the municipality to withdraw the Feb. 6 order which required police officers to operate the phone and radio, jobs normally done by CUPE members.

Weiler ruled that the order was a violation of the collective agreement between the municipality and the police union.

After Weiler's decision, the Esquimalt police commission held an emergency session and decided to ask for volunteers to man the phone and radio.

Police commission members handled the jobs overnight and this morning the first volunteer, Bert Wilson, was on the job. Wilson, a 30-year-veteran of the Victoria police force and a jailer for eight-and-a-half years, resigned from the Victoria force last year.

Esquimalt municipal clerk George Merz said today the municipality has received "quite a few" calls from people volunteering for the jobs.

He said all names were being taken and that the police chief would screen the applicants.

Volunteers must be over 19 years of age and live in Esquimalt.

Merz said shifts can range from four hours to eight hours, "the longer the better."

Esquimalt police union vice president John McDonald said today the police officers are pleased with the ruling but "for the security of residents, the volunteers should be properly screened."

Meanwhile, the Esquimalt CUPE local is seeking legal advice today on whether the volunteers recruited by the municipality can be considered "professional strikebreakers" under the B.C. Labor Code. The code prohibits the use of such strikebreakers, but no exact definition is given of the term.

A spokesman said the issue could be taken to the Labor Relations Board for a ruling, depending on the legal advice received later today.

In a statement, CUPE Local 333 officials said they are concerned "about the calibre of outside volunteers who are manning the main nerve centre of the police department."

The statement said any "kook or nut off the street could jeopardize the confidential nature of police work."

Sixth Drop For U.S. Index

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The key U.S. economic index showed the sixth monthly decline in a row in January and the U.S. trade deficit rose by $210.5 million the commerce department said today.

In a separate report, the labor department said layoffs in the automobile, construction and textile industries pushed the number of unemployment insurance recipients in early February to more than 5.9 million.

The unemployment rate for workers covered by state insurance plans rose from 7.4 to 7.6 per cent. A year ago the rate was 4.1 per cent. The official national unemployment rate is higher — at 8.2 per cent — because not all workers are eligible for benefits.

PSAC Strikes Rim

Pacific Rim Park is the latest federal government operation on Vancouver Island to be hit by the PSAC series of rotating strikes.

Two Pacific Rim employees walked off the job this morning and set up picket lines across the park road between Tofino and Ucluelet.

PSAC regional representative Tom Dalzell said today's strikes at national parks across the country are in protest against the federal government's continuing designation of PSAC members as "essential to national safety and security."

Dalzell said all designating was to have been completed some time ago, before the conciliation board was appointed, but the designations have continued.

Dalzell said one Pacific Rim Park employee was designated as essential only two days ago.

A spokesman for the Millsteam Timber Co. in Ucluelet, a logging contracting company for B.C. Forest Products, said the company's logging trucks were not being halted by the picket lines. The spokesman said the picket line was more for information and the men were handing out pamphlets, but not attempting to stop any of the logging trucks.

Parks director Jack Holyroyd said today he did not anticipate any inconvenience to park visitors because of the strike.

"There is some work that is not being done, but it's of no great consequence," he said.

Province Seeks Own Beef Ranch

The provincial government and the B.C. cattle industry are looking for land in the Kamloops area on which to locate a $3 million, 50,000 head cattle development, a department of agriculture official said Wednesday.

He said the development would ease beef marketing fluctuations, give better returns to ranchers and provide some comsumer savings on forage-fed beef.

E. M. King, associate deputy minister of agriculture, and spokesman for a joint government-beef industry committee, said such a development was proposed in a report last July by Canadian B10 resources Consultants Ltd., of Cloverdale, B.C.

King said the government would like to buy at least 300 acres and as much as 2,000 acres which would include a new cattle sales yard for the Kamloops-Merritt area holding pens and feeding pens in addition to enough backup land for forage production.

He said the area would likely be leased to private business.

King said the key to improved industry in B.C. is more forage production — alfalfa on irrigated benchland and major expansion of corn silage production.

He said the development would increase sales options for cattlemen by including pens for cattle not sold at auction, pens for continued feeding of cattle not quite ready for market, and pens for cattle waiting shipment.

He said the development could prolong the season when cattle could be forage fed, rather than grain fed.

TALKS RESUME ON CIVIC TIFF

Greater Victoria municipal employers today promised an important statement on the status of a month-old strike-lockout of civic employees.

Jim Campbell, chairman of the Capital Regional Board and a member of the regional employers bargaining group, said just before a mediation meeting this morning that he didn't know "whether it will be good or bad," referring to what he called " a report on the state of affairs as they exist at that time."

Mediation officer Clark Gilmour opened the second meeting aimed at resolving the dispute in the Empress Hotel at 10 a.m.

Employers last Thursday requested a week to study a revised proposal from the area bargaining committee of the Canadian Union of Public Employees. See also Page 15.

VACANT LOT NO HAZARD

A property in Victoria inspected Wednesday for any residual radiation hazard proved to be clear — in more ways than one.

It is now a vacant lot, on Pandora, but beyond that officials would not pinpoint its location. But the building torn down there three years ago and housed a watch repair business 18 years ago.

Discovery of a Toronto building with high residual radiation after a luminous paint spill has led to a national inspection of some sites which once handled the paint.

PM Won't Let Scandal-Wracked Munro Resign

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro was driven to the brink of resignation Wednesday by a harbor dredging scandal in his hometown of Hamilton.

Pale and apparently exhausted after three days of tense Commons questioning, Munro offered to quit the cabinet but was advised by Prime Minister Trudeau to see a doctor, take a rest and think it over.

The scandal figures in a nationwide RCMP investigation into dredging company activities. A senior RCMP spokesman said during the day that new charges will be laid soon as a result of the investigation. But they would not be related directly to the Hamilton case.

Activities by dredging companies have embarrassed the federal, Quebec and Ontario governments, and caused the resignation of Ontario Solicitor-General George Kerr.

Kerr quit last Friday to fight allegations of wrongdoing in the Hamilton scandal which already has produced three convictions and resulted in charges against two other men, one a former Hamilton harbor commissioner.

Munro denied criminal or political misconduct but said he may be forced to resign and devote full energies to clearing his name.

The minister was mentioned in the transcript of a preliminary hearing into charges connected with the scandal.

"With the kind of inferences and accusations that have been made, it's very difficult to carry on," he said.

But he agreed to follow Trudeau's advice and think the matter over before deciding on his future. He did not indicate how long a rest he will take to make up his mind.

Trudeau, who left Wednesday night for a two-week European tour, said he knows of no wrongdoing by the minister and will not accept a resignation because a man is tired.

He left open the possibility that circumstances might change but said there are no adverse police reports and Munro has nothing to be ashamed of.

Munro waved off reporters as he left the Commons but answered questions later in his Parliament Hill office.

The nine-year cabinet veteran said in a halting voice the last few days have been the most turbulent since he was first elected to the Commons in 1962.

He did not object to media coverage of the scandal but said political opponents should stop insinuating that he has done wrong unless they are prepared to make specific allegations.

The Hamilton case became public during the July 8 election campaign when a controversy broke over appointments to the harbor commission and donations to Munro's re-election campaign funnd.

He said at the time that political patronage is common and the public knows it. But the controversy would end his political career, he predicted. He was wrong. Hamilton East voters returned him to Parliament with a strong majority.

He has been under recurring political attack since.

'What's My Line?'—B.C. Tel Style

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

"Which do you want, private or party line?" asked the B.C. Telephone representative when Greg Lundh of View Royal applied for a phone hookup in early December, 1974.

The answer was "private."

But now, more than two and one half months later, there still is someday else on Lundh's line. Nobody seems to know quite who it is, how they got there or how to get rid of them.

Lundh got the phone put in his house at 361 Island Highway in early December, with assurance from the telephone company that it was a private line.

"Then around Christmas, I guess a time when people make a lot of phone calls, I became aware that I had a party line," he said.

"I heard people talking when I lifted up the receiver, but I never thought to ask them what their number was."

When the December bill arrived in January and included charges for a private line, rather than the party line he was on, Lundh took the bill into the company's office and explained the problem.

B.C. Tel agreed to adjust the charges and assured Lundh once more than the private line would be his in a matter of days.

The private line didn't materialize though, and the voices on the line persisted.

When the January bill arrived in early February, the private line charges were there again.

Again Lundh made a trip to the B.C. Tel office on Johnson Street and this time talked to a supervisor who explained, Lundh said, that the line had been checked six times and no party line connection had been found.

"They asked me if I was sure I really had a party line."

When he told them he was positive about the party line, the supervisor told him, he said, that the company would do a "cable cutoff" which would rectify the situation and assure Lundh of a private line.

He was told, he said, that the problem may have been a partially cut off phone — where the people could still phone out but no one could phone in.

On Feb. 17 the "cable cutoff" was performed and "I figured that was that, at last," Lundh said.

But two days later, he picked up the phone and there was the party line voice.

"The voice was a kid so I asked him if he had a party line phone and he said he did.

"This time I got the phone number from him."

Friday afternoon Lundh took the phone number down to B.C. Tel.

"The man I talked to told me the phone number would help a lot, but they didn't seem so certain anymore that I could get a private line.

"I was told that is some localities there were not enough lines to give out private lines. I can understand that, but if I'm in one of those locals, why did they ask me in the first place if I wanted a private line?"

A B.C. Tel spokesman said there are numerous ways the problem could have come about.

"Between the main office and his line, there is a myriad of cables and it's possible to get an incorrect splice somewhere along the line," the spokesman said.

"It's one of those abortive things that you don't know how it gets there."

The Cuban Experience: A New Winter Escape

If I've said it once I've said it a dozen times: there's just no winter vacation as pleasant, as cheap, as informative or as memorable as a trip to Cuba.

I have been on that Caribbean island no less than four times since Fidel Castro wrought the changes that are overdue for all of Latin America. The Good Lord willing, I hope to go again.

The Cubans are only just now concentrating on Canadian tourists. This year the effort is mainly on weekly charter flights from Montreal and Toronto, at an all-inclusive rate of $330. But next winter there'll be longer visits possible out of Vancouver and some of these have been previewed by adventurous holidayers, including my friend Art Cottrell, a retired printer of our town, and his wife Bessie.

The Cottrells are just back from a three-week tour to Cuba, booked through a Victoria travel agent. They paid $1035 apiece, everything included except for their meals in Mexico City, in company with 12 men and eight women from various parts of British Columbia and Alberta. You go, incidentally, via Canadian Pacific to Mexico City, on Cubana Airlines to Havana.

While most of the tourists during my visits there were of Socialist persuasion, come to see what the revolution has done, the Cottrells are the new breed of holidayer, looking for the winter's sun, an off-the-beaten-track experience and with an apolitical curiosity about the realities of Cuban life not to be found too often in your daily newspaper. They had, as the saying goes, a wonderful time. They recommend it, as I do, to everyone.

Cuba has just about everything to attract the winter-time Canadian visitor. There's no gambling, no prostitution, no beggars, no drug culture. Tipping of any kind is forbidden. There are no hidden "extras" in the tour costs. Service is efficient and honest. You may stroll the midnight streets of Havana or any other city without the fear of being mugged.

While the Cubans themselves wouldn't dream of entering the warm Caribbean during the winter months and reserve that pleasure for the summer, when they take their 30-day vacations and fill up the resorts that are used by outside visitors during the winter, the climate is ideal for northerners. The beaches, notably the 18-mile stretch of Veradero, are beautiful, clean and uncrowded. The sea is clear, blue and tepid. There are ocean breezes and the shade of palms when the temperature goes above the 80-mark. The humidity is low.

Zoe Bieler, of the Montreal Star, who made one of the first one-week tours out of Montreal, says you may run into showers that tend to dribble rather than pour or the occasional toilet without a seat, familiar irritations in Latin-America, but the Cottrells had excellent and sometimes luxurious accommodation throughout their stay.

Food is often rationed for the Cuban, though they've the highest calorie consumption next to the United States and Canada, but the tourist is pampered. Zoe writes of shrimp cocktails, rock lobster in a spicy sauce and other delicacies. On her final night at a beach party, a suckling pig cooked slowly in coconut oil and stuffed with herbs and rice.

Beer and wine are served with lunch and dinner, but individual highballs are expensive. Canadian visitors are given tourist tickets to buy drinks in bars at half price. Zoe, forwarned, took her own duty-free Canadian booze with her and records that she spent less than half of the $75 extra she'd allowed herself for spending money.

Apart from the military installations, there are no off-limits areas. The Cottrells wandered about as they pleased. Art spent one memorable hour in a large Havana print shop, introduced himself to the staff, set a few slugs on their Linotypes and fielded questions by one of the English-speaking printers about how things work in a Canadian shop.

The Cubans, they agree, are particularly warm to visitors from north of the American border since we've kept normal relations with Castro since the beginning, and are understandably anxious to show the progress they've made. That meant a crowded schedule and bus tours throughout the island. At many points, when their government guide Marcia proudly showed them new housing projects built by volunteer workers — and my own recollection is that new housing is one of the revolution's great achievements — the busload of Canadians couldn't resist a spontaneous cheer.

The Cottrells' itinerary included a trip down to Cienfuegos where they watched Demarara suger being loaded into ships for export (sugar, by the way, is unrationed and costs 13 cents a pound) and a visit to the old city of Trinidad from which Cortez took off for his conquest of Mexico.

They spent some time on a collective dairy farm at Yaya, wandered through the Indian village at Gauma and visited a government alligator-breeding station.

While they were at Veradero they visited the old DuPont summer home and estate, maintained by the government in all its splendor, and Bessie recalls that when they entered the castle-like home a young Cuban was playing classics at the DuPont's grand piano. They went, as well, to the Hemingway farm outside Havana, where he wrote "The Old Man and The Sea."

Zoe reports that several optional tours, including deep-sea fishing, scuba-diving, sightseeing, bicycle riding and horse-riding, are also availabe at rock-bottom rates.

She, herself, took the all-day trip from Veradero to the Bay of Pigs where the Canadians enjoyed a boat trip, a swim and lunch with beer for just $7.

Public buses, always a good way for a tourist to see a new city, cost six cents. Taxis are rare — almost all the cars are of early vintage — and it's almost impossible to rent a car. Gas is rationed for those who do own cars — 10 gallons a month for 60 cents a gallon, most of it from the Soviet Union.

Above all, the Cottrells found the Cubans fun-loving, warm and friendly, hard-working to overcome their isolation from the United States, and determined to give the Canadian tourist his money's worth.

LITTLE RED STICKER, being applied to auto licence here by Dorothy Tolsma of local insurance agency, is a must by midnight Friday if you want to drive your car legally. Sticker signifies renewal of insurance under B.C.'s Autoplan and an estimated 200,000 drivers in province have yet to purchase this year's coverage. Some insurance offices will remain open late Friday and open on Saturday.

Foreshore Wharves Illegal

Construction of wharves across forshore in the northern part of North Saanich municipality is illegal, the B.C. Appeal Court ruled this week.

The court upheld an earlier finding that the owner of land adjacent to foreshore does not have the right to build wharves on the foreshore and the owner of the foreshore could claim trespass.

Kathleen Mary Murray and E.M.P. Estates Limited, represented by D. M. Gordon and P. W. Klassen, appealed the decision last year of Mr. Justice George Rae. North Saanich municipality, which leases the foreshore from the crown, was represented by C. O. D. Branson.

The appeal judgment, written by Mr. Justice Peter Seaton, said each of the appellants constructed a wahrf on and across the foreshore adjacent to their land on pilings driven into the soil and pots set on concrete footings. North Saanich claimed this was trespass.

"A number of American decisions," said Mr. Justice Seaton, "hold that the riparian owner (an owner of land adjoining water) may build a wharf, not because he has a right to erect a structure on the foreshore, but because he has a right of access to the deeper water that he cannot enjoy except by means of a wharf.

"It is said that he has the right to make his right ot access practical. That rule has not been adopted elsewhere, in Canada or in England, and I do not think that we should adopt it in British Columbia.

"The rule as it now stands protects the right of access of the riparian owner. Except in the exercise of that right the riparian owner can do nothing to the foreshore inconsistent with the foreshore owner's rights. Short of interfering with navigation or the rights of the other, each has freedom.

"If the riparian owner is to build a wharf to make better use of his right of access or the foreshore owner is to do something in the use of the foreshore that would interfere with the right of access, they must reach agreement.

"In the absence of agreement the natural state of things will continue. That is as it must be if ownership of the foreshore and riparian rights are each to be of value."

Builders Optimistic Despite Slowdown

Union and construction spokesmen today indicated their industry has been hurt but not seriously by slowdowns and work stoppages resulting from the CUPE strike-lockout.

Construction Association of Victoria manager Ed Phillips said contractors still look forward to a brisk year for building projects, provided the situation does not deteriorate.

The school district's Spectrum secondary, valued at $3.6 million, was still in the excavation and foundation stage when it was shut down by CUPE pickets. At Colwood, Juan de Fuca recreation centre was closed down with the lockout as workmen advanced steel framing work.

PHILLIPS
. . . brisk year

Phillips said these were the only two major projects closed and causing layoffs.

Construction inspections required before jobs can proceed to completion have been carried out slowly by supervisory personnel from the municipal and regional jurisdictions, and Phillips hoped that situation would not get worse. (See Story below.)

At this time of year there is still much construction work in the tendering stage, before contracts are awarded, and there could be delays in getting approval to start work.

Jim Sawyer, vice-president of the carpenter's union in Victoria, said lack of inspections has halted some work and slower issuance of permits has delayed starts.

Without attributing how much was due to the municipal dispute, Sawyer said there have been layoffs amounting to 25 per cent, or 250 men, in the carpenter's union.

Some work is proceeding without regular inspections, he said. Contractors are hoping for the best when normal inspections resume.

Interim Plan On Inspections

A resolution establishing an interim system for approving building and plumbing inspections during the current civic labor dispute was passed Wednesday by the Capital Regional Board.

The board noted that the month-long strike-lockout involving the Canadiias Union of Public Employees has left the district with insufficient staff to process applications for building and plumbing permits and subsequent inspections.

So for the duration of the dispute, the board has agreed building permits may be processed by Bill Gerry, director of engineering, provided drawings, specifications and lot plans are certified by a disinterested professional engineer or registered architect as meeting the building bylaw.

Building inspections required by the bylaw may be accepted by Gerry where they are made by a disinterested engineer or architect who certifies construction meets bylaw terms.

Plumbing isspections required by the bylaw may be accepted where the inspection is made by a disinterested master plumber who certifies the installation meets conditions of the bylaw.

But construction involving septic tank installations, which also requires a permit and inspections, will face delays because such inspections are being carried out by one man, Dr. Allan Arneil, the regional health officer.

Arneil, who has been conducting the final inspections on septic tanks, said today it is going to be difficult too find time to add initial inspections.

He has conducted about 25 final inspections over the past three weeks, most of which have called for re-inspections. At the moment he has a list of seven new installations to inspect, 18 re-inspections and seven malfunctioning systems to deal with. He has been spending weekends, early mornings and evenings on this work.

Ticket Wicket Extended

The Greater Victoria traffic ticket wicket in room 102 at the Law Courts at 850 Burdett has extended hours to operate from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays.

The wicket was moved earlier this month from Victoria provincial court at 633 Fisgard because of CUPE picketing.

Officials said traffic tickets and fines may still be mailed to 633 Fisgard. This applies to everything from $2 parking fines to payments of $500 or more for major offences.

Ask The Times

Q: Who, where and when really first said "fuddle duddle?" L.W.

A: This epitome of Canadianisms is unrecorded until Pierre Trudeau told reporters outside the House of Commons on Feb. 16, 1971, that was the expression he had uttered after a question from across the floor from MP John Lundrigan. It evoked an opposition reply recorded by Colombo's Canadian Quotations as: "The prime minister wishes to be obscene and not heard."

'Merry Days' Pushed By Chamber

A two-pronged publicity campaign by the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce to advertise Victoria's appeal as a tourist centre and stimulate convention business, is under way.

The chamber is distributing 30,000 leaflets to cities across Canada and the U.S., listing the activities and attractions of the Victorian Days celebrations May 17 through 25.

"Visit us for nine wonderful days of merriment as the Capital City sheds her inhibitions, lifts her skirt a little bit higher and frolics like a youngster," the pamphlet's text urges.

To stimulate interest in a more general way, the chamber is considering the publication of a 50-page booklet on all aspects of the region's life, although some members doubt that the proposed 5,000 copies would make the exercise worthwhile.

At Wednesday's meeting of the chamber's board of directors, an alternative discussed was to publish a newspaper supplement in tabloid form.

Three Bs Off to Far East

Balloons, books and baubles will be part of the stock in trade aboard four Esquimalt-based naval vessels when they leave Sunday at 2 p.m. for a three-month cruise to the Far East.

"Canadian balloons and other goodies will be aboard," a service spokesman said today," to be used for the shipboard parties the ships will give underprivileged children in the ports they visit.

"They'll be promoting Canada and things Canadian and these kind of parties are the best kind of social activity for the sailors. They always get turned on by the kids."

He said crates of books have been stowed aboard. These will be delivered to English Speaking Union branches in various ports.

"There's also a supply of various small items from Ottawa, the North West Territories and the western provinces, maple leaf pins, tourist pamphlets, maps etc," he added.

Capt. John Rodocanachi will be in command of the four-ship flotilla, which includes three destroyers of the 2nd Canadian Destroyer Squadron — HMCS Terra Nova, HMCS Kootenay and HMCS Restigouche, as well as the support ship HMCS Provider.

Commanded by Capt. Colin Shaw, the Provider will be with the destroyers until they return to Esquimalt, replenshing them with fuel, stores and provisions while the ships are under way.

The itinerary includes calls at ports in Hawaii, Hong Kong, the Philippines, South Korea and Japan.

While they're away from their home port, the four ships will take part in two major exercises — one off Hawaii and the other off the Philippines.

Since the submarine HMCS Rainbow has been taken out of service, ships of CFB Esquimalt must rely on submarines from other countries to get their anti-submarine warfare training.

Thirty-two members of naval reserve divisions from across Canada and 25 Royal Canadian Sea Cadets from the western provinces will be in the four ships, carrying out duties alongside members of the regular force.

"Having the reserves with us will allow the honing of reserve skills and provide valuable assistance to the regular forces," Rodocanachi said. "With the cadets, we will be expanding a pool of high calibre naval recruits."

The Provider will slip her lines Saturday, going to Port Moody to take on supplies.

She will join the three destroyers Sunday as they make their way through the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

UNION NOT SERIOUS—CAMPBELL

CUPE Proposal Rejected

The regional civic employers' bargaining group today rejected contract proposals of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, stating that the bid seeks an increase of 46 per cent over one year.

CUPE Local 50 president and chairman of the union negotiating group Jim Walker said after the morning session "we're still negotiating," despite the fact that the employers rejected the union proposals. "We're here to bargain and we'll stay as long as it takes."

Walker said the unions and the municipal bargainers had agreed last week not to release details of the union proposals to the press, "but then the employers walked in here this morning and said they were going to break that agreement," Walker said.

"We believe they (CUPE) are not serious about this proposal," regional district chairman Jim Campbell said following a week-long study of the union submission. "We have instructed our negotiator not to accept and to do his best to determine an area of settlement."

Campbell said the proposal, submitted through mediation officer Clark Gilmour last Thursday, brings the regional employers to the stand that CUPE must be willing to say in what area they could negotiate more seriously.

During the past week, said Campbell, municipal employers had seen the union attitude hardening. He cited the strike by school maintenance crews in school district 61, reducing the school day to one hour.

Campbell said CUPE's area bargaining committee turned down a civic employers' request to end the maintenance workers lockout.

In the week since CUPE presented its counter proposal, the employers figured costs on the CUPE proposal. Additional costs, said Campbell, were figured at $2 million for Victoria; $1.7 million for Saanich; $1.8 million school board; Oak Bay $381,600; Esquimalt $370,700 and $355,700 for the Capital Region.

The composite, he said, would be 45.61 per cent on a payroll of $14.8 million.

Saanich and Sidney would be required to absorb increases of 47 per cent with others ranging down to 34.72 per cent in the Capital Regional District.

Pact Leak Row Boils

Both B.C. government and civil service union officials were upset today at the public release of details of several civil service wage contract settlements.

Employers Council of B.C. disclosed the wage increases granted by 13 civil service bargaining components in its regular industrial relations bulletin Wednesday. The details apparently came from Victoria despite an agreement between the government and the B.C. Government Employees Union not to disclose any wage settlements until all components are settled.

The figures reveal wage increases as high as 56 per cent for draftsmen and 44 per cent for junior clerks and forest assistants.

Many of the wage settlements were previously made public knowledge through cabinet orders which officially approved several of the new wage scales. The figures were disclosed in a Times story one month ago in which 44 per cent wage increases were noted.

BCGEU secretary John Fryer expressed anger over the apparent break in the agreement of silence and said the disclosures may affect the agreements now being negotiated with the remaining components.

"It's bloody irresponsible. If something goes wrong, the first to issue a statement saying public service bargaining doesn't work is the (employers') council."

The disclosures may inflame the other components, Fryer said, adding that the 1,800-member trades and crafts component had already rejected a contract proposal, "and if they go out, every institution in the province is in trouble."

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall agreed there was a binding agreement not to release data and said he had stuck by that promise.

"There's been some slip-up. I regret it; in fact I am very annoyed about it," he said.

The disclosures have led to "idiotic use of percentages" by the press, Hall said.

He called the percentages "fatuous" because the emphasis of the wage settlements has been to bring civil servants up to a level comparable with other sectors of the economy.

"If the percentages are accurate they only reflect what was required to bring a clerk-

Too Old For Science

LONDON (UPI) — Lady Parker was disturbed about experiments involving beagle dogs. She climbed into her limousine and drove to a chemical company, volunteered to chain-smoke cigarettes for three years and offered then to be killed in the interest of science.

The 74-year-old dowager, widow of Britain's former lord chief justice, said she had read about beagles being used in cancer research.

She arrived at ICI Chemicals' Office and offered to chain-smoke 30 cigarettes a day and then be killed so her organs could be examined.

Lady Parker said the company turned her down, saying she was "too old".

Highrock students set out to "reCUPE" their rights

Students Picket Pickets

With homemade placards around their necks, seven Grade 9 students paraded in front of their school on Head Street Tuesday picketing the picket line set up by the Greater Victoria School Board Employees Union Local 382.

The action caught the four adult pickets by surprise and they were not amused.

"We're being picketed," an agitated woman picket said. "It's unfair for the kids to butt in."

But the students were undeterred by the union pickets' jibes — or the veiled threats to have union officials tell their parents.

"We have nowhere to go," one of the youths said. "There's nothing left but the street corners.

"It wouldn't be so bad if we could use the gym or recreation centre, but we can't."

Some even said they missed going to school, adding the daily 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. class sessions were not enough.

"I don't want to fail my year," one girl said.

The students are trying to get other schools to participate in their Operation ReCUPE and said they intend to picket the legislature, city hall, Crystal Pool and Memorial Arena today.

"It's a free country," said one of the union pickets who declined to give his name. "They have the same rights as we have."

But he wasn't impressed.

Volunteers Face Pickets at Home

Esquimalt's locked out municipal workers may picket the homes and businesses of volunteers manning the police department's phone and radio, a spokesman said today.

The municipality put out a call for the volunteers late Wednesday after a Labor Relations Board ruling established that Esquimalt police officers are not required to perform work normally done by the locked out members of Local 333 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Union officials said today they consider any outside volunteer as "allies to the municipality and if required, we would picket their residence or place of business."

In his ruling Wednesday, LRB chairman Paul Weiler directed the municipality to withdraw the Feb. 6 order which required police officers to operate the phone and radio, jobs normally done by CUPE members.

Weiler ruled that the order was a violation of the collective agreement between the municipality and the police union.

After Weiler's decision, the Esquimalt police commission held an emergency session and decided to ask for volunteers to man the phone and radio.

Police commission members handled the jobs overnight and this morning the first volunteer, Bert Wilson, was on the job. Wilson, a 30-year-veteran of the Victoria police force and a jailer for eight-and-a-half years, resigned from the Victoria force last year.

Esquimalt municipal clerk George Merz said today the municipality has received "quite a few" calls from people volunteering for the jobs.

He said all names were being taken and that the police chief would screen the applicants.

Volunteers must be over 19 years of age and live in Esquimalt.

Merz said shifts can range from four hours to eight hours, "the longer the better."

Esquimalt police union vice-president John McDonald said today the police officers are pleased with the ruling but "for the security of residents, the volunteers should be properly screened."

Meanwhile, the Esquimalt CUPE local is seeking legal advice today on whether the volunteers recruited by the municipality can be considered "professional strikebreakers" under the B.C. Labor Code. The code prohibits the use of such strikebreakers, but no exact definition is given of the term.

A spokesman said the issue could be taken to the Labor Relations Board for a ruling, depending on the legal advice received later today.

In a statement, CUPE Local 333 officials said they are concerned "about the calibre of outside volunteers who are manning the main nerve centre of the police department."

The statement said any "kook or nut off the street could jeopardize the confidential nature of police work."

PSAC Strikes Rim

Pacific Rim Park is the latest federal government operation on Vancouver Island to be hit by the PSAC series of rotating strikes.

Two Pacific Rim employees walked off the job this morning and set up picket lines across the park road between Tofino and Ucluelet.

PSAC regional representative Tom Dalzell said today's strikes at national parks across the country are in protest against the federal government's continuing designation of PSAC members as "essential to national safety and security."

Dalzell said all designating was to have been completed some time ago, before the conciliation board was appointed, but the designations have continued.

Dalzell said one Pacific Rim Park employee was designated as essential only two days ago.

Parks director Jack Holyroyd said today he did not anticipate any inconvenience to park visitors because of the strike.

"There is some work that is not being done, but it's of no great consequence," he said.

VACANT LOT NO HAZARD

A property in Victoria inspected Wednesday for any residual radiation hazard proved to be clear — in more ways than one.

It is now a vacant lot, on Pandora, but beyond that officials would not pinpoint its location. But the building torn down there three years ago housed a watch repair business 18 years ago.

Discovery of a Toronto building with high residual radiation after a luminous paint spill has led to a national inspection of some sites which once handled the paint.

Province Seeks Own Beef Ranch

The provincial government and the B.C. cattle industry are looking for land in the Kamloops area on which to locate a $3 million, 50,000 head cattle development, a department of agriculture official said Wednesday.

He said the development would ease beef marketing fluctuations, give better returns to ranchers and provide some consumer savings on forage-fed beef.

E. M. King, associate deputy minister of agriculture, and spokesman for a joint government-beef industry committee, said such a development was proposed in a report last July by Canadian Bio Resources Consultants Ltd., of Cloverdale, B.C.

King said the government would like to buy at least 300 acres and as much as 2,000 acres which would include a new cattle sales yard for the Kamloops-Merritt area holding pens and feeding pens in addition to enough backup land for forage production.

He said the area would likely be leased to private business.

King said the key to improved industry in B.C. is more forage production — alfalfa on irrigated benchland and major expansion of corn silage production.

He said the development would increase sales options for cattlemen by including pens for cattle not sold at auction, pens for continued feeding of cattle not quite ready for market, and pens for cattle waiting shipment.

He said the development could prolong the season when cattle could be forage fed, rather than grain fed.

ARABS BLACKLIST 1,500 U.S. FIRMS

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 1,500 U.S. firms have been blacklisted by Arab countries for doing business with Israel, the state department said Wednesday.

Senator Frank Church (Dem., Idaho) made public a 1970 Saudi Arabia blacklist including such companies as Ford Motor Co., Sears Roebuck and Co., RCA, and Xerox Corp.

Harold Saunders, deputy assistant state secretary, confirmed supplying the list to Church as chairman of the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on multinational corporations. He said other Arab countries have their own boycott lists.

President Ford told a news conference in Hollywood, Fla., the blacklist "is totally contrary to the American tradition and repugnant to American principles."

Sixth Drop For U.S. Index

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The key U.S. economic index showed the sixth monthly decline in a row in January and the U.S. trade deficit rose by $210.5 million the commerce department said today.

In a separate report, the labor department said layoffs in the automobile, construction and textile industries pushed the number of unemployment insurance recipients in early February to more than 5.9 million.

The unemployment rate for workers covered by state insurance plans rose from 7.4 to 7.6 per cent. A year ago the rate was 4.1 per cent. The official national unemployment rate is higher — at 8.2 per cent — because not all workers are eligible for benefits.

PM Won't Let Scandal-Wracked Munro Resign

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro was driven to the brink of resignation Wednesday by a harbor dredging scandal in his hometown of Hamilton.

Pale and apparently exhausted after three days of tense Commons questioning, Munro offered to quit the cabinet but was advised by Prime Minister Trudeau to see a doctor, take a rest and think it over.

The scandal figures in a nationwide RCMP investigation into dredging company activities. A senior RCMP spokesman said during the day that new charges will be laid soon as a result of the investigation. But they would not be related directly to the Hamilton case.

Activities by dredging companies have embarrassed the federal, Quebec and Ontario governments, and caused the resignation of Ontario Solicitor-General George Kerr.

Kerr quit last Friday to fight allegations of wrongdoing in the Hamilton scandal which already has produced three convictions and resulted in charges against two other men, one a former Hamilton harbor commissioner.

Munro denied criminal or political misconduct but said he may be forced to resign and devote full energies to clearing his name.

The minister was mentioned in the transcript of a preliminary hearing into charges connected with the scandal.

"With the kind of inferences and accusations that have been made, it's very difficult to carry on," he said.

But he agreed to follow Trudeau's advice and think the matter over before deciding on his future. He did not indicate how long a rest he will take to make up his mind.

Trudeau, who left Wednesday night for a two-week European tour, said he knows of no wrongdoing by the minister and will not accept a resignation because a man is tired.

He left open the possibility that circumstances might change but said there are no adverse police reports and Munro has nothing to be ashamed of.

The nine-year cabinet veteran said in a halting voice the last few days have been the most turbulent since he was first elected to the Commons in 1962.

He did not object to media coverage of the scandal but said political opponents should stop insinuating that he has done wrong unless they are prepared to make specific allegations.

The Hamilton case became public during the July 8 election campaign when a controversy broke over appointments to the harbor commission and donations to Munro's re-election campaign funnd.

He said at the time that political patronage is common and the public knows it. But the controversy would end his political career, he predicted. He was wrong. Hamilton East voters returned him to Parliament with a strong majority.

He has been under recurring political attack since.
